FINNISH PROSECUTOR KILLED; SON WOUNDED

MAN ENTERS VICTIM'S APARTMENTS AND USES REVOLVER WITH FATAL EFFECT.

Special Cable to Boston American.

HELSINGFORS, Feb. 6.—A man attired as an officer, calling himself Alexandre Gadd, entered the apartment of Jonshon, the prosecutor of the Finnish Senate to-day, fired a revolver several times, killing the prosecutor and seriously wounding the latter's son.

The assassin has been arrested.

CHARLESTOWN GAS CO. FIGHTS LOWER RATE

TREASURER FOWLER AT HEARING PAINTS BLACK FUTURE IF 80-CENT RATE IS MADE.

The hearing on the petition of Charlestown citizens for 80-cent gas was resumed to-day before the commission. Arrangements had been made for a continuance of the hearing on the capitalization of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, and all counsel concerned in this hearing were present.

Former Attorney-General Pillsbury, counsel for the Charlestown Gaslight Company, had been ill and had understood that to-day was to be given to the hearing on the petition against his clients and had gone to the State House prepared to go on with the case. After a conference at the last moment, the Board decided to go on with the Charlestown hearing. The capitalization hearing will be resumed on Wednesday.

Mr. Pillsbury said he had expected to call Walter R. Addicks as his principal witness. Mr. Addicks, he said, had promised to testify, but was unavoidably prevented. Another witness whom he had expected was A. C. Humphreys, president of Stevens Institute and former manager of the United Gas Works of Philadelphia.

A letter from Mr. Addicks was read, in which the New York capitalist suggested that the Charlestown company's plant and equipment might be brought up to date, that its circumstances were different from those obtaining in Brookline, Jamaica Plain and Roxbury, but that it could not look to outside resources for any gas supply.

Objection for the Petitioners.

Mr. Auerbach, representing the petitioners for cheaper gas in Charlestown, objected to any contents of the letter being accepted as evidence, as it had not properly been presented. Mr. Addicks suggestions were in line with the contention of the company, that gas cannot be sold cheaper in Charlestown because of the out-of-date and uneconomical equipment of the plant there.

Chairman Barker stated the board would take Mr. Auerbach's objection under advisement.

As first witness, Samuel J. Fowler, treasurer of the Charlestown Gas Light Company, was called. He testified that he had been in the gas business for over thirty years. He had been connected with the gas company in Westfield, and was general manager of the Springfield Gas Company. He has been with the Charlestown company since 1901.

Mr. Fowler read from a prepared statement, which amounted to an argument against cheaper gas in Charlestown, and Mr. Auerbach objected.

"These are general arguments of counsel, and ought not to be put in by him," he said.

Chairman Barker allowed the statement to be read, as Mr. Fowler was general manager as well as treasurer of the company.

"I understood the Board was looking for information, and Mr. Fowler is merely making an argument according to his views," Mr. Auerbach added.

Mr. Barker ruled that the reading of the statement should continue.

Almost in Financial Straits.

Mr. Fowler's reading was to the effect that the company was now almost in financial straits o nacount of the poor equipment for manufacture.

"The outlook is so threatening that we ought not to be handicapped by a reduction in the price of gas," he said. "The past three years have been somewhat prosperous, and we purpose to put more money into the plant. This year we expect to spend $150,000, but we shall get no return on the expenditures for three years."

The company, said the witness, hopes eventually to make all its own gas. At present it makes only part of what it sells, buying the rest from the Massachusetts Pipe Line Gas Company. The company originally sold gas at 54, the present price being $1.10 per 1,000 feet. The favorable contract with the Pipe Line, said witness, caused the prosperity of the past three years, but the contract is not to be renewed.

"If we are not to receive the reward of our toil and good management, what motive will we have for continuing our good management and efficient conduct toward the public?" the witness asked in closing.

Hostile British Speech Rouses Germany

KAISER TO PROTEST

Admiralty's Allusion to Menace by German Navy Creates Hard Feeling.

Emperor and Von Buelow in Conference To-day Regarding Official Note.

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—There is no longer any doubt that the speech of Arthur Hamilton Lee, British Civil Lord of the Admiralty, at East Leigh, England, on Thursday evening, has created strained relations between England and Germany.

Emperor William and Imperial Chancellor von Buelow had a conference this morning, at which, it is reported, they drew up an energetic note of protest to be forwarded to Lord Lansdowne, the British Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The speech in question was of a sensational character and was delivered before a non-political assemblage at a dinner at East Leigh. Speaking of the recent redistribution of the British navy, Mr. Lee said Great Britain had no necessity of watching France, but that she had better keep a watchful eye, though not a fearful one, turned in the direction of the North Sea.

Several of the newspapers of England, commenting on the speech, said at the time that it would be well for Premier Balfour to muzzle his civil lord of the admiralty.

POPE INSISTS ON MALE CHOIRS

ROME, Feb. 6.—The Pope has received a large number of petitions from America prelates, soliciting a dispensation from the pontifical decree prohibiting women in the church choirs, and ordering the use of the Gregorian chant and plain songs of worship.

His Holiness has replied that he is unable to grant the dispensations requested. Arrangements have been made with a gramaphone company to reproduce the Gregorian songs by the Sistine and other leading Roman choirs. The records will be sent to America for models.

WOMEN KILLED IN FIGHT WITH COSSACKS

600 ATTACK FACTORY AND FORCE WORKMEN OUT; ROUTED BY SOLDIERS.

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—A telegram from St. Petersberg reports a clash between women and police and Cossacks at Rostoff on the Don.

Six hundred women stormed the Nevikoks factory and forced the workmen to quit work. The workmen were reluctant to join the strike, but the women dominated the machinery, making it impossible for the men to return to work. Police were summoned and routed the women, pursuing them for some distance and wounding a number.

The women again collected, whereupon Cossacks were summoned, who dispersed the mutinous with knouts. Several of the women were killed and many were wounded.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 6.—Six thousand reserve soldiers have mutinied at Petrhof. Disaffection that had existed for a fortnight has culminated in open insubordination. Reliable information of the mutiny has been received, and it is known that the Government is taking measures to crush the revolution as speedily as possible.

The rebellious soldiers, it is stated, are under arrest in their barracks. Whether such a large body of armed men can be suppressed or held in check without a serious conflict is the grave question that is confronting the authorities.

Dispatches from Sebastopol say that another mutiny among the sailors has been suppressed, and that the naval barracks are strongly guarded. A court-martial has sentenced eleven mutinous sailors to terms of imprisonment ranging from four to fifteen years. Seven were acquitted. Nine sentences, and seven were commuted.

The Czar has refused to grand the demand of the Imperial Attorney that sentence of death be passed on four of the ringleaders. Several hundred rebellious sailors are still in custody.

COSSACK ATTACKS REPULSED BY JAPS AT THE HUN RIVER

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Dispatches from Tokio tell of renewed activity among the Russian forces along the Sakhe and Hun Rivers, and report several fierce attacks by Cossacks on Japanese positions, all their charges being repulsed, however.

The Russians shelled parts of the Japanese lines along the northern rivers Friday night, and small bodies of Russians attacked Walton end Titi Mountains and places in those vicinities.

Reports received from Japanese Manchurian headquarters say that all the attacks were repulsed.

Friday afternoon Russian batteries stationed at Liuchientun and Wanpow Mountain, north of the Sakhe River, and other places, shelled the Japanese emtions.

Saturday morning 600 cavalry, comprising one force, and two companies of infantry and one battery another, simultaneously attacked Chitaitse, on the right bank of the Hun River. The Russians appeared to have reserves. The Japanese garrison at Chitaitse was Grending the place when the report of the attack was forwarded.

Japanese prisoners believe that an important movement is pending.

U. S. WATCHES WAR FLEETS TO KEEP OUR PORTS NEUTRAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The United States authorities are watching closely the movements of the Japanese and Russian fleets in the Far East, and are taking every precaution that the neutrality of the Philippines shall not be violated by either of the belligerents.

Rear Admiral Stirling, Commander-in-Chief of the Asiatic fleet, has received reiterated instructions to apply President Roosevelt's proclamation of neutrality to the Philippines just as they would be applied to the coasts of the United States.

Admiral Stirling's fleet comprises: Battleships, two; monitor, one; protected cruisers, four; gunboats, seven, and torpedo boat destroyers, five.

Nantucket Vessel on Dumpling Rocks Sends Wireless Message for Aid—New England and New York Harbors Blocked by Great Ice Floes.

With six inches of snow already fallen, and the declaration of the local forecaster that the storm will continue all day and through the night, Boston faces a serious tie-up of transportation facilities.

The rigorous weather conditions here are but reflections of the situation covering a greater area of this country than has been snow-swept and ice-bound for many years.

It is not believed that the storm in and about Boston will cause so much distress as the recent severe one, because of the absence of heavy wind.

A call for help has been received by wireless telegraph at Newport from Government Lightship No. 66, which it is feared is being carried upon Dumpling Rocks, near the western entrance of Buzzards Bay.

Lightship in Peril.

To-day the following message was received from Captain Doane of the imperilled vessel:

"Inside Dumpling Light in dangerous position. Send Captain of Lightship Tender Azalea to hel p."

At 10:30 to-day another wireless message was received at the Newport Station, saying that the lightship had been driven ashore, and that she had listed until she hung at an angle of forty-five degeres. It is feared that the vessel may be completely overturned.

TWENTY MEN ABOARD.

There are about twenty men on the lightship, but it is not thought that they are in great danger, as they could make their escape in case the vessel was thrown over by the wind. The boat is now about 200 yards from the shore.

GUNBOAT ON RESCUE TRIP.

The gunboat Ilist and the Azalea are on their way to the assistance of the lightship. Dumpling Light, where the lightship lies, is five miles northward from Mishaum Point. There are very strong currents at that point, and these, together with the winds that have prevailed to-day, were the cause of the mishap to the vessel.

The electric and steam railways of this city have already begun to fight the downfall of snow. A force of men are at work in the yards of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railway at the South Station trying to keep the tracks clear. It was at this point that there was the trouble causing most of the delay in the service during the last storm.

BARGE GODDARD CAUGHT.

The large Thomas A. Goddard, bound from Georgetown, S. C., to Boston, is frozen fast at Vineyard Haven. In the gales encountered on her trip up the coast she lost her fore and main lower topsails and maintopmast stay sail.

The British steamer Ethiopia, which arrived in New York to-day, reported passing two huge icebergs in her course. One of them was 200 feet long and seventy feet high.

At Delaware Breakwater the Austrian steamer Argust and the Anna Trieste, both bound for New York, are anchored together, unable to proceed. The Anna is furnishing coal for the Argust.

The entire country east of Kansas City, Mo., and from the northern section of Maine to the southern parts of Alabama, is embraced in the icy sweep of Winter.

The Atlantic coast is ice-locked. South of Cape Cod the conditions are particularly severe. Martha's Vineyard is enclosed in an unbroken sea of ice. Nantucket is under a similar embargo.

REAL WINTER IN SOUTH.

Those who sought Southern sections to escape the rigors of Winter have found out their mistake. In the city of Atlanta Ga., the streets are rivers of ice and the citizens are skating from their homes to their business. Norfolk, Va., is ice covered.

Throughout a large area of the South the ice and snow have crippled railroad service and cut off some of the towns from telephone and telegraph service.

The harbor of Newport is completely closed. Both the eastern and western passages of Narragansett Bay are blocked by ice.

The conditions at New York are the most dangerous that ever existed there. In the bay and narrows the ice has packed to such an extent that navigation is very dangerous. Many of the buoys indicating the danger points have been swept away by the heavy ice floe.

TWO LIVES LOST.

Two lives were lost in Boston harbor yesterday because a sailor and a boy trusted their weight upon the treacherous ice which is blocking the entire coast of New England. Andrew Wilson, fireman on the steamer St. Croix, lying near Hodge's boiler works, East Boston, tried to reach the shore by crossing the floe and broke through. His body was recovered and the torn condition of his hands showed that he made a desperate struggle to clamber out of the chilling water before succumbing to exposure.

A boy, believed by the police to be Harold Murphy, of No. 129 Neponset avenue, Neponset, left through the ice in Dorchester Bay, near Thompson's Island, where the strong current weakened the floe, and was swept under ice cakes and drowned within the sight of hundreds of persons. Harry Lewis, James Sabine, Robert Sloan and Albert Clifford, four South Boston boys, made a heroic attempt at rescue. All but Clifford broke through the ice, and it was his courage and presence of mind that saved the others. The boys were taken to Carney Hospital.

There is more ice in Boston Harbor than has been seen there for years, while the main channel is full of drift ice. The four-masted schooner Davenport and the five-masted schooner Palmer are stuck in the schooners' fleet four days at least, and are imprisoned ice on the south shore of Cape Cod, nine ft. Vineyard Haven, while many other craft are battling with ice at various points on the Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut Coasts.

LIGHTSHIP HELD FAST.

The Nantucket Shoals Lightship is gripped in the ice field and failed in an attempt to steam from New Bedford, where she has been repaired, to her station. A wireless dispatch from Captain Doane says that the boat is stuck, hard and fast, in the ice off Minimis Point, near the entrance to Buzzard's Bay.

Both the Handkerchief and Shovelful shoals lightships, on the south side of Cape Cod, are frozen fast in the ice field which fringes the shore. The tug Plymouth, bound from Boston to Port Johnson, with a tow of four barges, is reported at Chatham.

There is some anxiety in shipping circles over the Swedish steamer Wermland, due from Mediterranean ports a week ago. It is feared that she has made such a long trip that she is short of coal, or that by some accident to machinery she has broken down at sea.

HOW THE ICE PACK IN VINEYARD SOUND LOOKS TO-DAY.

This photograph of floating hummocks in Vineyard Sound illustrates the condition of the water all along the coast of New England, where shipping is imperilled and frozen in by floes which gather, and, freezing together, hold ships in their grip.

NANTUCKET SHOALS LIGHTSHIP, DRIVEN ASHORE AT DUMPLING ROCKS

ICE IN HARBOR HERE HOLDS UP SHIPPING

The United Fruit Company's steamer Admiral Dewey, from Jamaica, was the only boat to arrive in the harbor early to-day. Shipping is practically at a standstill, on account of the heavy ice floes, especially in the outer harbor. The Rice-Towboat Company's boats are breaking out the ice around the T wharf fishing schooners, and some of the fishing boats may leave port to-day if there is any sign of clearing.

Strong southerly winds are blowing along the water front, and it is impossible to see any great distance. The snow and sleet is heavy, and there is considerable danger to boats rounding into the ice floes.

Floating Ice in Harbor.

Captain Porter of the Admiral Dewey said, when he arrived early this morning, he was more floating ice in the outer harbor than he ever saw in his years of experience at this port. The floating ice is driving out to sea, and is dangerous to ships coming in the outer harbor.

The Boston Towboat Company's tug Jupiter went down as far as the lightship early to-day, and reports that there are no ships waiting to come into the harbor. The snow and sleet is very thick out at the lightship.

Several fishing schooners which arrived yesterday have supplied the market with fish sufficient for two days at least, and the non-arrival of the fishing boats is not expected to be up the market. There are at least fifteen boats tied up at T wharf to-day, and none of them dare to venture out under the present storm conditions.

The ferryboats are experiencing considerable difficulty in making their passages across the harbor. The ice clogs the wheels, and at times the boats have had to back water in order to release themselves from the grip of the floating ice.

Chelsea Ferry Bothered.

On account of the longer passage, the Chelsea ferryboats have been supplied more to the floating ice than the ferries. The East Boston and the Revere Beach boats are running close to schedule time.

Rising temperature last night and this morning has caused the ice in the Mystic and Charles rivers to break, and it is being driven into the upper harbor by the strong northeaster.

The record snowfall in recent years was during the Winter of 1888-1889, when it was 58.3 inches. Ten inches more of snow will make this year the record breaker.

Already New York has spent $1,000,000 for snow removal, and $200,000 would have been required to cart off the last snow and more has been added to it by the fall of last night.

Vessels that have been able to get into harbor during the past two days report serious danger, in addition to the masses of ice that they encounter, in fact that many spar buoys and can buoys have been torn from their anchorage and carried away, some to sea and others to different points along the coast. The lighthouse department has several steamers out hunting up their buoys and establishing them in their proper locations. The department is anxious over the situation, as the absence of the warnings makes navigation extremely hazardous.

None of the smaller steamers has been able to enter or leave the harbor. Even the big ocean liners have made port with difficulty and have been late in docking. The Sound steamers were late in making some progress during most of Sunday, but in the afternoon gave it up. The James S. Whitney sailed to-day for Boston by the outside course. Officials of the company said that they would not risk trying the inside course, as it was reported next to impossible for a steamer to make any headway. The steamship Hermann Winter, for the Metropolitan line, took the outside course yesterday from Boston, and came in by Sandy Hook after a hard run.

MOUNTAINS OF ICE IN VINEYARD SOUND

WOODS HOLL, Feb. 6.—The ice embargo on Martha's Vineyard is complete. The coast is swept by a heavy southeast gale. The wind is driving the great floes of ice over the shoals and piling it mountains high on the shores of Martha's Vineyard and Falmouth.

Captain Marshall of the steamer Uncatena had a narrow escape with his vessel from being destroyed by the ice floe. The Uncatena, which was tied up at Cottage City, signed her line early this morning and made a run for it just in time to save herself from destruction.

"If my vessel had been an hour later at Cottage City," said Captain Marshall, "she would have been caught in the ice and crushed."

Captain Marshall did not attempt to cross the Sound to-day. Captain Howes of the Underliner Naushon had to eight out the schooner Van Allen's Broughton, Boston for coal port, loaded with northeast of Handkerchief lightship, and one loaded four-master and two three-masted schooners anchored nearby, eastward bound.

Wrecking tug J. L. Johnson has arrived from New York to procure the anchors and cables which are in the bay. Vineyard Haven, last week when floating the steamer Georgetown, got 15 anchors within a few miles of Nantucket Island this force, most, but on account of the heavy ice it was impossible to secure the anchors and cable, and the tug returned to this port.

The situation at Nantucket remains unchanged. The ice has loosened up a bit since the outside gale set in, but not sufficiently so that a boat can leave, in spite of the imprisoned passengers at Nantucket will endeavor to-day to reach the wreck of Merritt.

From tower and cliff to-day could be seen four large schooners trying to better their position in the bay. They were apparently in the ice, but moving with the tide. The wind must swing from the southern board to start the ice. The local weather experts forecast such a change in the forty eight hours.

SNOW TILL TO-NIGHT THEN MORE COLD

Snow will fall in Boston throughout the day and to-night, to the opinion of Forecaster Smith of the local Weather Bureau, to be followed by clearing and colder weather to-morrow. Only a trace of more snow is expected.

Easterly to variable winds prevail to-day. Storm warnings were ordered up by Forecaster Smith from Portland, Me., to New Haven, Conn., this being the territory covered by the Boston district.

In the opinion of the Weather Bureau, the present storm will not cause the distress the one of ten days ago caused, owing to the fact that it is not accompanied by a heavy wind.

The wind in Boston to-day was easterly and was blowing only twenty miles an hour. At Nantucket the wind was twenty eight miles at 8 o'clock and twenty-two miles at Block Island at the same time. A light wind was reported at New York.

The storm originated in Texas and along the Gulf coast. It was central over the Ohio Valley during the night, and moved to the New Jersey coast this morning.

Snow fell in Eastport, Me., and it was also snowing west of Chicago. Rain fell in New York city and also in Atlantic City, but there is little prospect of a further rise of temperature in Boston owing to the direction of the wind. The temperature in this city at 8 a. m. was 26 degrees. Moderately higher temperatures prevailed throughout the country to-day.

The weather reports from other cities will show, however, that Washington and other points south and west are still suffering from the intense cold.

NEW YORK BURIED IN ICE, SLEET AND SNOW

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—With her harbors forming a great girdle of ice, her streets banked with mountains of snow, more snow fell on New York last night and to-day than there came rain and sleet, forming an ice coating on the streets and sidewalks. The temperature continued to hover around the freezing point. If Forecaster Emery be correct in his prophecy, there will come more sleet and rain, forming more ice on the pavements and sidewalks.

Already this Winter four feet of snow has fallen in New York, and the end is not yet.

The snowfall for last winter was 30.5 inches. The fall for January alone this year was 19.2, the highest known to the snow removal bureau.

FIGHTING HARD TO KEEP ROADS OPEN

With through trains to Boston already behind time, railroad officials are now asking a hard fight to keep the local service from being tied up. At North and South Station yards extra large forces of men are shovelling out the tracks and working on the switches and complicated interlocking systems, fighting the snow as fast as it falls. Anticipating danger of a snow blockade, the terminal companies threw out their yard forces early. This alone saved them from being tied up so far.

At the South Station the locals have been running on time up to noon. The Atlantic express, from Chicago, due here at 8:47 a. m., was one and one-half hours late. The Chicago mail and express, due here at 6:50 a. m., was two hours late.

At the North Station the local service is being kept up to schedule only by heroic effort on the part of yard masters and section bosses. The heavy, damp snow clogs the yard tracks and switches, and from the suburban yards come reports of constant exertion to keep the lines clear. All through trains struggled along, making good time, except the Chicago express, No. 6, which was due at 9:50 a. m., but was last reported as four hours behind time. The Montreal and Portland trains are on time so far.

RAIN, SLEET, SNOW IN THE MIDDLE WEST

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The meteorological conditions of the last few days have culminated in one of the most general and widespread rain, snow and sleet storms of recent years. The area of precipitation covers the entire country east of Kansas City, Mo., save only New England, New Jersey and the extreme eastern portions of New York and Pennsylvania.

The fall of snow in Iowa, Missouri, Northern Indiana and Northern Illinois and Michigan was rather heavy, but the temperatures were not unusually low.

Snow is falling at Knight in the upper Ohio Valley, the Lake region, and the Mississippi Valley north of Missouri also in the Middle Atlantic States north of Virginia.

SAVED FROM SINKING SCHOONER AT SEA, 8 BROUGHT TO PORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Picked up just as the leaking vessel under them was about to go to the bottom, eight shipwrecked seamen were brought into port on the Atlantic transport line steamer Messaba. They were rescued from the three-masted schooner Amanda, in midocean, on February 1. The Amanda was bound from St. John's, N. F., for Bahia, with salt fish, having left port on January 24.

The schooner encountered ice floes and heavy gales. Blown out to sea, the vessel sprung a leak, but her decks, rails, rigging and spars became coated with ice. In order to lighten the vessel, the anchors and chains were thrown overboard. The water increased in the hold, and the exhausted crew had to jettison the cargo and keep the pumps going. The schooner was sinking when the Messaba approached and lowered an emergency boat.

Captain Fitzgerald of the schooner set his vessel on fire so he left it, when the Messaba steamed away the schooner was enveloped in flames.

ELEVEN INCHES OF ICE BLOCKADES GLOUCESTER HARBOR

GLOUCESTER, Feb. 6.—The storm is increasing here. Heavy snow is being driven by a northeast wind. Thick weather prevails over the harbor, and it is impossible to see a boat's length off shore.

The ice line in the harbor has moved from Ten Pound Island to Dog Bar Breakwater. Twenty vessels, which have been anchored in the outer harbor, are preparing to weigh anchor and get outside to avoid being frozen in. In the inner harbor ice is eleven inches thick. A channel is being kept open by towboats.

COLD SNAP BRINGS HIGH PRICES FOR EGGS AND OYSTERS

High prices for eggs and oysters are the results of the cold wave which is afflicting the country. Eggs are now forty-five cents a dozen in Boston, and dealers say that if the ice embargo is long maintained there may be a famine. The prevailing price was equalled during the famine two years ago. Storage eggs are selling here at twenty-seven cents. At retail some are bringing as high as half a dollar a dozen. Practically no consignments of eggs are coming to Boston.

Oysters are getting scarce in the Rhode Island beds, because of a coating of ice two inches of ice. Supplies are almost exhausted, and dealers say that there is little prospect of replenishing them from fields in this vicinity.

COLD WEATHER MAY CAUSE A COAL FAMINE

Held in the ice at Newcastle, Del., are six oceangoing tugs, each towing three huge coal barges bound for Boston and other Northern ports. If this fleet and others are not released within a few days Boston may find itself facing a coal famine.

From Mt. Desert, Me., down to Baltimore, all Atlantic ports are icebound. At the Delaware breakwater is a coal fleet hemmed in by broad ice fields. Unless warmer weather comes soon, serious trouble may result from a shortage of coal.

"There is no immediate danger," said President Edward Hamlin, of the Metropolitan Coal Company, to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "Of course, if the cold weather continues there may be trouble.

It all depends upon the quantity of coal there is on hand in the city. If there is enough for the city's consumption for four or five days there will not be very great distress. I cannot tell how much coal there is on hand. However, I do not look for much trouble."

NOTED PRELATE TOLD OF VISION BEFORE DEATH

Monsignor Doane Braved Storm for Suffering Boy and Died.

A SCENE OF GRANDEUR

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 6.—According to Phillip Hendey, Mgr. George H. Doane just before his death told of a vision of beautiful heavenly scenes that had come to him on the previous night. Mr. Hendey's son, William, had died three days before. The boy had long been a favorite of Mgr. Doane.

During the middle of January the boy was thought to be dying, and Mgr. Doane, in spite of the fact that it was 11 o'clock at night and a snow storm was raging, hastened to the Hendey home and administered the last rites of the church to the boy. The monsignor said: "All my prayers were out on other calls and I could not let poor William die without seeing him."

The boy rallied and lived nearly a week. Mgr. Doane took the bereaved father aside the next day and said:

"Philip, I had either a vision or a dream, in which I appeared to be in heaven and was talking to your son. It occurred a few minutes after I retired. It seemed to be in a place where all was light and music. Though I could see no one and knew not whence the sound came, I heard the most entrancing music that I ever listened to. Truly there was singing such as I never heard before in my life.

"Above all the sounds of music came the voice of your Willie, clear and strong. It said: 'Oh, monsignor, are you with us so soon? This is a beautiful place and we are all so happy, for there is nothing to do but to sing and listen to the sweetest music. How are papa and mamma? I hope they are well. You must stay with us, monsignor. We want you here for we are all so happy.' I answered that you, Philip, and Mrs. Hedley were well, and I told him that I could not remain with him, notwithstanding the happiness which he could relgned there. He urged me again to stay or to return soon, and then he led me through the glorious place and to the throne of God. I cannot tell you what it was like, Philip, for I have no words in which to picture the grandeur."

Just four hours after he had left the house, Mr. Hedley heard of the death of Mgr. Doane.

MITCHELL IS NOW CHIEF OF NEWTON POLICE

Now Lieutenant, He Is to Be Appointed to Head Force by Mayor Weed.

The second step in the reorganization of the Newton police department will be taken to-night when Mayor Almon M. Weed will send the nomination of Lieutenant Fred M. Mitchell to the Board of Aldermen as chief. The first step was when the resignation of Chief Fred A. Tarbox was demanded and received the latter part of December.

Several other changes will be made by the new chief under the direction of the Mayor. Two patrolmen will be promoted to the rank of lieutenant, and a sergeant reduced to the ranks by Chief Tarbox will be restored to his former position.

The resignations of two patrolmen are now in the hands of the Mayor, to be accepted at any time he sees fit. At least a half a dozen others are under suspension, one sergeant is slated to be reduced to the ranks.

The two patrolmen who will jump a grade are William P. Soule and James J. Mullen. The former is one of the oldest men on the force in point of service, having been appointed in 1885. Mullen has been serving as wagon officer at headquarters for the past four years. He was appointed in 1893 and has a good record.

Former Sergeant Charles T. Bartlett, who was the star witness in the hearing against Chief Tarbox and who was reduced to the ranks a short time after the hearing, with the approval of Mayor Weeks, will take his former rank. He has been on the force since 1886 and is extremely popular among those who have worked under him.

Fred M. Mitchell, the new chief, has risen rapidly in the department since his appointment in 1896. He has been drill master of the force for the past three years. He was appointed in 1896 and has risen rapidly from the ranks.

HELEN BATES M'NALLY, WHO SUES FOR $30,000.

Hearing Resumed in Breach of Promise Suit for $30,000.

Helen Bates McNally Sues a Cambridge Man for Heart Balm.

The hearing was resumed in Middlesex Superior Court at East Cambridge to-day on the $30,000 breach of promise suit brought by Charlotte Helen Bates McNally, a Boston society girl, against Lawrence Emmons Lee of Riverbank court, Cambridge.

Mr. Lee is a Harvard graduate, secretary of the H. M. Caldwell Company, book publishers on Summer street, and is married. Miss McNally says she became engaged to Mr. Lee in 1899, and that the wedding day was set, but that her love for him died. The next year they met again, their love was renewed and again they talked marriage, though no explicit arrangement was made for the wedding. Again they met and a wedding was planned for September 30, 1903.

Then Mr. Lee, according to her declaration, pleaded parental objection. Next she heard that he was married to Miss Florence Armstrong, of Allston. Now she demands $30,000.

Lee comes from a distinguished family. He is a relative of the famous Southern general, Robert E. Lee. His father, John H. Lee, of Boston, is a retired shoe manufacturer, whose family moves in the best social circles.

Tears with Story of Broken Troth.

Miss McNally lives at No. 5 Templeton way, Dorchester. She is an orphan, slender, blonde and vivacious. She has attracted much attention in the hearings before Judge Bishop on account of her attractive face and the emotion she has displayed in telling her story.

With tears streaming down her rounded cheeks, she recounted the successive meetings and heartbreaks which ensued after her first acquaintance with young Lee.

She told of their dining together, of the exchange of mutual vows of affection, of innumerable love letters she declares were written by each to the other.

Old Love Burned Afresh.

Among the most interesting parts of her story has been her description of meeting another man and falling in love with him after she had been infatuated with Lee. She declares that when her affection for Lee waned, in light of this other man's love, Lee continued to write to her, pleading for her to love him again.

She admits that when she did meet Lee the second time her first infatuation for him returned.

TUCKER WILL TAKE UP LAW OR MEDICINE

In the hope that his long confinement may not be barren of practical results, Charles L. Tucker, convicted of the murder of Mabel Page, will try to relieve the monotony of the hours in East Cambridge jail by taking up a course of study.

Sheriff Fairbairn has decided to allow him the unusual privilege of having what books he needs, and as soon as the prisoner notifies him what line of course he wishes to pursue, he can begin. This will not be for several days.

"He seems very anxious to improve his mind," said the sheriff. "He is not especially fond of literature. He probably will take up either law or medicine, as he has shown considerable promise in both. It will be left to him, however. Whichever he chooses, an effort will be made to give him a suitable start."

After several days' absence, Tucker's mother brought him another change of clothing, the little basket which has become so familiar object to the officials of the jail. It was as usual filled with dainties from the home kitchen. Mrs. Tucker has aged perceptibly since the verdict was given, and her husband's health is causing both her and the prisoner considerable anxiety.

Edward Page, the aged father of the murdered woman, has broken down under the strain of the trial. His condition is not serious.

District Attorney Sanderson and the Vahey brothers are carefully scrutinizing the lists of the experts who testified in the case, and it is expected that a large cut will be made.

YOUNG HERO SAVES TWO FROM DEATH THROUGH ICE

Third Boy Was Unable to Keep Up and Was Drowned in Full Sight of His Playmates.

Fourteen-year old Albert B. Clifford, of No. 582 East Seventh street, South Boston, is being praised to-day for heroic rescue from drowning of James Lafsive, of No. 675 East Eighth street, and Robert Sloan, of No. 279 Athens street. He tried hard to save a third boy, who was struggling in the water, but was unable to without help. The latter was Harold V. Murphy, of No. 128 Neponset avenue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Murphy. His sister, Miss Mabel Murphy, who lives in Abington, came home to-day in response to a message from her parents. At the home the sad news was told her. She fainted and is now overcome by grief. In her watch case she carried a small photograph of him, which she showed to a reporter to-day with tears in her eyes, as she spoke of Harold, and what a good brother he was. Miss Murphy is twenty-one years old, and is the eldest sister. Her condition to-day is pitiful, as she tries to comfort her parents in spite of her own sorrow.

Tells Story of Rescue.

Young Clifford has finally given a detailed account of what happened, as follows:

"I was coming in from Squantum when I saw a boy go through the ice. I yelled to the other boys who were skating and ran down on the ice. Five other boys heard my yell and started toward the boy in the water, when suddenly they shied on this ice and all were into the water.

"When I got to the spot where the five boys went in I pulled off my overcoat and holding it by the collar threw it as far as it would go. Jimmie Lafsive caught hold and I drew him out on to the thick ice.

Too Late for Murphy.

"After getting him out I threw my coat to Sloan, for the other boys had been pulled out all right. Sloan grabbed my coat and I had no trouble in pulling him out.

"I wanted the boys to form a life ladder and get the first boy out, but they hesitated, and the poor fellow went down for the last time."

PRAISE FOR TRADES UNIONS FROM BRANDEIS

Louis D. Brandeis, a prominent Boston lawyer, gained considerable unfoolsun in an address to the Boston Central Labor Union in Wells Memorial hall yesterday, saying that it had many great advances during the last few years, not only in growth in membership, but because many people realize that the sins of one are the sins of all able. He said the gain was largely due to the great coal strike, which drew public attention to the trades union problem. He was generally with the union and against the Coal Trust. Even among employers many realized that their interests lay with the workingmen as against the great aggregation of capital.

"Who could say," Mr. Brandeis asked, "that the work of the union in seeking to improve the conditions and shorten the hours of labor, to raise wages—to protect children and women—made for good citizenship and general welfare of the community?

He said that the labor unions were gaining support from the most conservative classes because the American Federation of Labor opposed socialism. He continued:

"Obviously, we should strive to conduct our industries so we do our governmental, that is, to secure the greatest good, for the greatest number. The employers of the greatest number should get of the fruits of the business as much as possible.

"They can by no greater mistake for the workingman than to restrict the output of the individual.

"You must make the total savings of the business in which you are engaged the largest possible. The most potent factor in securing large profits is the avoidance of waste, and the greatest source of waste in the modern world is unused, undeveloped or misdirected human effort.

"The hours of labor should be reasonably short but during working hours each individual should work hard and work efficiently, and under conditions leading to the greatest possible efficiency.

"It follows also that differences in efficiency between the individuals must be recognized and rewarded; and that those who can work better and better than others must not be retarded by the less efficient.

BELL TRAILS WRITERS OF DEATH THREATS

WALDEN, Vt., Feb. 6.—Governor Bell is determined to do all in his power to capture and punish the persons who have sent him threatening letters in regard to the case of Mary Rogers.

He has stirred up the Boston police so most of the letters have come from that city and its vicinity and has also started the Federal authorities at work on the case.

He said at his home here to-day that the police were making progress in tracing the writers of these letters and that there were four persons in Boston whom he specially wanted caught and punished.

Will See It Through.

"I am going to see this matter through to the end," he declared, "and have the Boston writers of the threatening letters rounded up.

"I have received word from the Boston authorities to the effect that some of the writers can be traced. There are especially four writers of letters from Boston that I want to see punished because of the violent threats against me made by them.

"I am determined to find a way to punish these people, and I will spare no effort to have them captured.

"I have placed the matter in the hands of Attorney-General Fitts with instructions to push it as far as possible."

Authorities Aiding Him.

The Governor says that both the Boston and Federal authorities are working diligently in the matter.

No arrests have been made, but it is intimated that some will be made in a day or two.

The aid of the legal machinery of Massachusetts has been asked by Governor Bell, and Attorney-General Parker has declared that his office will give all possible assistance in bringing the offenders to justice.

While the Governor does not fear for his own personal safety, he is indignant over the flood of letters which he has received, and the nefarious letters which have been sent to him. Out of over 1,000 letters received, by him, at least one-quarter came from Boston and vicinity.

Some of the letters declared that the Governor was a married man," "selected for death," or "would suffer the same fate as Mary Rogers," and similar threats.

LIFE SAVERS ARE TO HAVE POWER BOATS

EASTPORT, I. L., Feb. 6.—Power boats are to be adopted in the coast life saving service this Spring. The first, a thirty-four foot self-righting and self-bailing lifeboat, propelled by a twenty horse power gasolene engine, will be used at the Fire Island station.

Two other boats of similar type will be brought into use, the stations where they are to be sent having not yet been determined.

CAMBRIDGE TO SEEK SUBWAY INTO BOSTON

ELEVATED IS NOT WANTED

Cambridge citizens, through Mayor Daly and a number of influential men who have joined him, will this week endeavor to adopt some sort of feasible plan by which the University City may have a subway to Boston instead of an elevated structure.

It is understood that the taxpayers of Cambridge are in favor of some means of rapid transit connections between their homes and their offices in Boston, but the present conditions they are to get an elevated structure.

A subway is wanted. How to get it has not been decided upon, but forty men have met with Mayor Daly and declared that an elevated system will do great injury to the city; that it will depreciate real estate values and will make Cambridge in that portion through which the overhead structure may be constructed unfit for residential purposes.

Views of President Bancroft.

To this contention President William A. Bancroft, of the Boston Elevated, has replied that the conveniences of the traveling public are more to be considered than the objections of property holders.

He pointed out in his letter to Mayor Daly's committee that the action of the Legislature of 1897 provided that there should be constructed an elevated system from the West End to Boston via Cottage square, Cambridge, and that the Boston Elevated Railway was ready to carry out its instructions.

Realizing that if action is to be taken it must be done immediately, citizens are ready to take up the fight this week and carry it through. The City Council will meet this week and will appoint a committee to prepare some sort of a plan by which Cambridge may be released from the burden of an elevated structure.

Committee of Citizens to Act.

To aid this committee Mayor Daly will appoint a committee of five representative citizens who will act with the committee of the City Council.

This joint committee will meet with President Bancroft and the officials of the Boston Elevated. The plans of the railroad will be more clearly defined. The committee will state its objections to the present plans being carried out and will suggest some sort of compromise.

Recently when a subway was proposed a plan to please the committee which had it in charge reported that they favored not giving the Boston Elevated a permanent lease.

To this the railroad objects. President Bancroft has pointed out that in building the elevated system as they have been instructed to do by act of the Legislature, his company should have something for their investment money. If the road at first proposed should be carried out, the lease would be shorter than a short term lease of the subway.

Defends His Action.

Alderman Rand L. Carsten was head of this committee and he defends the plan, saying:

"Unless the matter is referred to the people," he said, "I am not in favor of giving the Boston Elevated a perpetual franchise to the subway. I would have been bold enough to accept the franchise offered me by the acts of 1897."

This is the point which will be argued between the committee and the Elevated officials. It is believed that if a compromise can be affected the city will be given a subway anyway.

In event of there being no compromise and no plan reported by the City Council, to have decided on a subway and are insistent that the road shall be no elevated structure through Cambridge streets, winding up in Lafayette Square, where it will connect with some of the finest residences in the city, which would come within the noise centre of elevated traffic.

PRODUCE BOOKS OF GAS TRUST SAYS PASTOR

Highwaymen was the characterization of Trusts, and the Gas Trust in particular, made by the Rev. Charles A. Crane in his sermon at the People's Temple, Mr. Crane said in part:

"From the days of Dick Turpin, Jack Sheppard and Claude Duval to this time, the highways have been the choice ground on which to rob the unprotected people. The James boys and the Younger brothers in their day robbed on the easiest victims. No successful plunder of the people was possible, in large ways, unless the highways are first in control of the getters of things. No combination to gather in wealth can skin and peel the people with out the aid of the highways. The railroads

Glorify the Robbers.

"Oil, coal and gas combines, of which the people are the victims, are impossible without the rebates and special privileges granted by which they control the high ways. We, as a people, have made way men by electing them to the National Senate and governance in one guise to be Secretary of the Navy. It takes a highwayman to rule highwaymen.

"Our highways have been given to the men. Trusts, as the birdies and the gas companies henchmouths. The Trust pays money to itself for gas and rents the pipe lines in the streets to itself and so juggles its books that the showing of profits is not for one day the Trust rents the pipe lines to the Brooklyn Company and the latter to the Bay State Company. All the profits results in the Trust.

Gas Commission Tried.

"With all this palaver about profit and loss and the testimony of experts and professional accountants, it has been declared that its office will give all possible assistance in bringing the offenders to justice.

While the Governor does not fear for his own personal safety, he is indignant over the flood of letters which he has received, and the nefarious letters which have been sent to him. Out of over 1,000 letters received by him, at least one-quarter came from Boston and vicinity.

Some of the letters declared that the Governor was a married man," "selected for death," or "would suffer the same fate as Mary Rogers," and similar threats.

BOY PLEADS GUILTY TO KILLING HIS COMPANION

EVERETT D. STURGEON

BOY WHO KILLED FRIEND IN HOCKEY GAME

Alone in Court To-day, Everett Sturgeon Surprises Judge by Plea—Released Under $1,000 Bail.

Everett D. Sturgeon, the sixteen-year old boy, accused of killing his playmate, Chester Ballard, with a blow from a hockey stick while they were on the Allston Golf Club's pond, has been released in $1,000 bail. Bonds for his appearance in the Brighton police court on Friday, were furnished by Mrs. Emma Brown, of Brookline. He was arraigned to-day on the charge of manslaughter.

Arrested yesterday at his home, No. 1085 Beacon street, Brookline, he passed the night in a police station, and came into court to-day with Sergeant Mallon and Special Officer McCarthy.

"Guilty," said young Sturgeon when the charge, accusing him of assault and battery upon the Ballard boy and causing his death, was read.

Judge Surprised by Plea.

Judge Charles A. Barnard, who had talked with the boy's parents before coming into court, heard the plea in surprised silence.

"Have you any counsel?"

"I don't know whether they have any counsel for me or not," young Sturgeon replied.

"I don't think that you understand the nature of the charge by your plea," said the Judge.

The young prisoner made no reply, but looked at the court as if dazed. Then Judge Barnard said:

"I will hold you in $1,000 for your appearance here on Friday morning."

The fatherless boy was then taken away. The court proceedings were of the briefest character.

Young Sturgeon was red-eyed from hours of weeping when he appeared in court. He glanced around once, as though seeking for sympathy.

Chester Ballard, the victim, was thirteen years old, and the child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Ballard, of No. 20 Stedman street, Brookline. The lad accused of killing his friend lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sturgeon.

Spent Night in Weeping.

Young Sturgeon spent the night in weeping and bemoaning the fate of his companion.

The two boys, between whom a close friendship existed, were playing hockey, Saturday afternoon on the grounds of the Allston Golf Club, off Commonwealth avenue. At the close of the game they became involved in an altercation over the possession of the "puck," and it is said that Ballard struck his older and larger companion over the knuckles with his stick.

Sturgeon, those who saw the quarrel say, retaliated with a blow of his hockey, which caught young Ballard in the abdomen. The boy fell to the ice, writhing in agony. He was taken by his home afterward removed to the Carey Hospital, where he died yesterday.

The families of both boys are grief-stricken over the occurrence. The two fathers met last night, but both were so prostrated that only a few words were spoken. It is said, however, that Mr. Ballard will not press the charge against his son's playmate, feeling that no crime was intended.

No Bad Feeling Suspected.

The police do not think that there was any bad feeling, and are convinced that the blow was given in a boyish squabble, on the impulse of the moment.

WALES MAY VISIT NEW YORK

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The fastest cruiser squadron in the world, with the flag of Prince Louis of Battenberg flying from the crack cruiser Drake and the Prince of Wales' royal standard flying from the mast of the Ophir, England the last of the month for a tour of the world. The plan, so far as it can be learned from a brief announcement of the admiralty, is to dispatch five of the fastest cruisers in the British navy on a tour of the principal ports of the world with a view of illustrating the admiralty's latest policy, in brief, to "show the flag." The squadron will be absent about eight months.

My Offer to Kidney Sufferers

I will give you a full dollar's worth of my remedy free to try without cost or deposit or promise to pay.

I could not make this offer—a full dollar's worth of a cure worth an ordinary dollar—unless it is not. It treats not the kidneys themselves, but the cause of their disease, and in almost every trouble this ALWAYS is; these nerves. The cure may be cure either when all other remedies and vitalizing and restoring these kidney nerves. This is why I can afford to make the offer I do. Because I know that if you make this trial you will need not only the kidneys but each of the other organs.

When I say nerves, I do not mean the ordinary nerves that everybody thinks of, but the automatic nerves which signal and direct the kidneys, liver, heart, stomach, bowels, bladder and other organs. Without these nerves they are nearly useless. The kidneys are their duties. Your good nerves control them and do their work for them. Yet when they are strong, you are well and they are not, and you may be sick and suffering and not suspect the kidneys.

I have written a book on the Kidneys which will be sent free to any address. It tells how and why and much, but much more. It tells of the kidneys and not only the kidneys but each of the other organs.

I have made my offer that strangers to me may test my remedy. If I had not found by the automatic nerves which signal and direct the kidneys, liver, heart, stomach, bowels, bladder and other organs. Without these nerves they are nearly useless. The kidneys are their duties. Your good nerves control them and do their work for them. Yet when they are strong, you are well and they are not, and you may be sick and suffering and not suspect the kidneys.

CONTRARY TO AGREEMENT

Special to the Boston American.

FALL RIVER, Feb. 6.—Lists of bona fide shutdowns of the operatives made before Governor Douglas in the matter of putting the operatives back to work may be submitted to the manufacturers to-day by Secretary Taylor, of the Textile Council.

Secretary Jackson of the Slashers, and Secretary Tansey of the Carders, say they may turn in at once such cases as have been investigated and proved. Secretary Taylor is personally preparing cases of bona fides. There will be few, if any, missing links under these signatures. The workers' grievances are more far reaching and not exactly in the nature of discrimination.

Fall River is short of good weavers. If all here were working, the mills would run them need more. But they are not all working. Instead of being out down 12½ per cent., which would reduce weaving to a fraction over seventeen cents a cut of forty-five yards, they have been in some instances compelled to run extra looms, fitted with alleged labor saving devices, reduced to about fourteen cents a cut, and many will not stand it.

Are Short of Weavers.

Of the forty one plants a dozen are short of weavers and half a dozen are almost crippled. The other departments therefore do not balance. If they did, some of the slashers, carders and loom fixers would be now loafing, might be put back to work. A prosperity like that of 1899 1900 required against the secretaries will carefully avoid the use of the police power, except in instances where deception and flagrant bad faith are apparent. As each plan to be received within the last ten days. The secretaries are jubilant, not only for the return of trade, unbroken, but because it proves the bad reasoning of treasurers who hoped at the end of the fight would be to destroy the Fall River textile organizations, the strongest in America.

It had been almost a quiet boast that one or more of the five mills would be destroyed in this labor contest. The blow fell heaviest upon the slashers, as intended, because one-third of them have been killed out of the mills since the strike was settled.

Secretary Jackson of the Slashers, said:

"We have lost just one union man in this strike, and that happened for reasons for it so strong that we could not blame him. The others have all stood firm, and will continue to do so. Besides, we have not taken a man into the union since the slashers. It looks as though the effect would be to greatly strengthen our organization."

GREAT SUN SPOT SHOWS MARVELLOUS CHANGES

PROF. PICKERING GETS QUERIES ON DISCOVERY

INVESTIGATION CONTINUED

Remarkable changes have occurred during the last two days in two of the three new spots discovered on the sun.

The remarkable pictures of spots on the sun that have been taken by Professor Edward C. Pickering, of Harvard Observatory, at Cambridge, and reproduced in the BOSTON AMERICAN, have attracted widespread attention and aroused great interest. Scientists learned in the mysteries of the skies and even the busy people of every day life have written to Professor Pickering for information relative to the facts he has deduced by his picture work. Letters are pouring in upon him from all sides, showing that extraordinary interest is being taken in the phenomena of the solar system.

A special dispatch to the BOSTON AMERICAN from Pittsburg says that Professor John Bradner of Allegheny is making minute observations of the present solar disturbances.

"The great spot has changed marvelously in the last two days," he said. "The various nuclei seem to have coalesced into three of quite large size. The great tongue of flame reaching out from the eastern side of the central spot has stretched across the entire central area. The whole spot is now exceedingly beautiful.

"The smaller spot, which appeared on the western edge a few days ago, has broken up into three spots of large dimensions. Two other spots have appeared on the extreme western limb.

"It appears that the electrical effect upon the earth from the sunspots is closely associated with the faculæ, which border the spot or are mixed up in it. They indicate the violent explosions that have sent the gases thousands of miles high until they reach a temperature sufficiently cool to solidify them, when they fall back into the sun again."

SAYS WIVES AND HUSBANDS BOTH SHOULD WORK

That wives should be largely self-supporting is the view taken by Dr. Gilman Nelson Patten, professor of economics at the University of Pennsylvania. He maintains that a wife should work as her husband does, so that, by the joint income, a good home may be provided and the children properly educated.

"Formerly the woman was the man's industrial partner," said Dr. Patten. "Her work now has gone out of the home and nothing remains for her but to leave the home in search of it. There is no use for her to waste her time in trying to do that which is now being better and more cheaply done by other means.

"It is far better that she should toil at some remunerative occupation and leave to others agencies the production of articles for household consumption.

"Everywhere we see the tendency for women to go into the leisure class. The wives of men of moderate means devote their time to dress, to calls, to attending the meetings of women's clubs, in going to dinner parties, theatres and bridge whist parties.

"That means a failing off of the population. It cannot have any other effect. The woman who has no work to do has no children because she does not wish to be bothered with them. She does not care for home. All her interests are outside of it. On the other hand, the woman who toils does not for the purpose of increasing the family income or that she may have to build up the home. She has four or five children where the woman of the leisure class has one.

"The whole idea which I propose is this: To take the wife away from the home, where she is often an inefficient agent, and to make it possible for her to work where she will produce something of value and add substantially to the family income."

MILES SCORED FOR STATEMENT ABOUT DAVIS

Special to the Boston American.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 6.—General Nelson A. Miles is being denounced for his recent statement purporting to be a true story of the treatment accorded Jefferson Davis, while a prisoner at Fortress Monroe. In North Carolina placards denouncing Miles's statement as utterly false appear on several public roads, and newspapers are filled with communications from old veterans bearing on the case.

Rev. Dr. William J. Jones, chaplain of the United Confederacy, in a lengthy statement, says Miles's version of the case is wholly false. Dr. Jones says there is no truth in the statement that Davis was accused of complicity in the assassination of Lincoln.

"Holt and his band of perjurers did not dare to try him on such a charge," he declares. "Captain Harrison Watts, of Charlotte, says he has evidence that Davis was unable to walk for quite a while on account of his treatment by Miles."

OLD KEENE HOUSE BURNS.

ARLINGTON, Feb. 6.—The Keene House, one of the oldest hotels in this vicinity, having been built about 1850, has been burned.

ANGLES SNELL WANTS TO DIE

NEW BEDFORD, Feb. 6.—Angles Snell, who killed Tillinghast Kirby, and who has been examined by alienists, declares that he is sane and prefers death to life imprisonment.

Snell is not in sympathy with the move on the part of his counsel to have him declared insane.

"No member of the Snell family was ever insane," he says.

Quinona Strengthens Nerves, Cures Indigestion and Makes Rich Blood

Margaret Crowley, Boston.
Reaps great benefits from Quinona.

Margaret Crowley, 83 Williams St., Roxbury, Mass., Boston, says: "I was all run down from overwork. Quinona brought back my health, strengthened my nerves and gave me an appetite."

Mrs. E. M. Magner, 98 Warwick St., Boston, writes: "Quinona cured me of indigestion, from which I suffered for a long time. I found partial relief after taking the first dose, and two bottles entirely cured me. I now eat without the slightest distress."

R. S. Medler, clerk, city division, Boston postoffice, says: "I was very nervous I would twitch all over, and at night I could not get rest. I was unable to work. I took one bottle and a cup to my lips because of the trembling of my hands. Doctors' treated me, but I gave no better. I was a physical wreck. In less than a month after taking Quinona I was back to work; my nervousness had entirely disappeared, and I can now hold out my hand without the slightest trembling."

EMMONS SEES CHINATOWN

Judge Emmons, Police Captain Cain and Sergeant Allen visited the headquarters of the two Tong societies and, knowing that they were coming, the officers of these two big Chinese societies prepared an elaborate banquet. They were much disappointed when the chairman of the Police Board declined to partake of either feast.

The societies are the Hip Sing Tong, said to be Highbinders, and the On Leong Tong. For years they have been engaged in deadly feud with each other. About one year ago there was a pitched battle in the Boston Chinese quarter and one man was killed and another wounded, showing that the New York branches were preparing to renew the quarrel. Judge Emmons thought it well to visit local Chinatown.

Judge Emmons found all quiet in Chinatown. He was greeted everywhere with the deference which would be paid a high class mandarin. The Hip Sing Tongs furnished a theatrical entertainment for the amusement and gave him New Year's cards. At the other Tong headquarters he listened to a Chinese orchestra which played selections from the works of some Mongolian Wagner.

WHOLE FAMILY SAVED FROM BURNING HOME

BROCKTON, Feb. 6.—The family of former Alderman Charles C. Holmes was saved from death by suffocation by Daniel Gillis, who went to the house to attend to the furnace and found that the cellar was on fire. He aroused the members of the family, got them out of the house in the smoke, and led them to the street.

The house was destroyed, the loss being about $3,000.

Advice in Strange Hands

SOME people of wealth tell you, in the tone of wise men teaching a refractory scholar, that you ought to do as they do. But fortunately the American people think for themselves. They do not like to be dictated to, and prefer to think out a problem with their own brains rather than accept somebody's theories. Be a true American and do not permit a physician or an editor—who are perhaps prejudiced for selfish reasons—to persuade you blunt in order to get a cure for your ills you must go to a doctor, perhaps pay $2.00 for a prescription in Latin that few can read or understand, and take it to a drug store and pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine which will last about a week. Furthermore, nine times out of ten the prescription calls for alcohol as a medium for dissolving the drugs. Now, the well-known American woman who isn't over-burdened with wealth, when she is sick, when she has periods of pain and distress, knows what her needs are, knows that a prescription which was originally put up by a physician of eminence for just such cases, a specialist in woman's diseases, will give her the required strength and benefit. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been sold for the past thirty-eight years in larger quantities than any other prescription for woman's ills. Women who have used this prescription have gotten well. It does not contain alcohol, or any dangerous drugs, and is guaranteed perfectly harmless to the most delicate system. It is scientifically compounded from active principles, extracted from the roots of the most valuable medicinal plants, and has been found most efficient in making weak women strong and sick women well. Follow the experience of others—write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Give a description of your case and he will tell you frankly and truthfully whether your case is one for which his "Favorite Prescription" can be recommended or not. There is no charge for his medical advice.

"I write to express my gratitude to Dr. Pierce for his medicine, 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mrs. Lucy A. Moss, of Meansville, Tenn. "I was suffering for about twenty years with female disease, also sick headache, painful periods, dizziness and many other bad feelings. At last was confined to my bed and was given up by my husband and friends. I could not walk a step, and my husband had to lift me about like a baby. At last I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Took three bottles and am glad to say to-day that I feel like a new woman. Am able to do my own washing and housework, and I wish to praise Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription world-wide, I cannot say enough for it; it is worth more than all I could say of it."

"I have used your medicines and can say there is none to equal it," writes Mrs. Samuel Taylor, of Ransom, Kans. "I recommend it to all I know to be in need of medicine, and all seem equally pleased with it. The medicine speaks for itself. One of my lady friends, the doctor said, had ulceration of womb, and she has, I believe, used twelve bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' and is now in the best of health, after trying the home doctor quite a while. So your medicine will sell itself. I have great faith in Dr. Pierce's medicines, and will always speak a good word for them."

"I have taken several bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and cannot praise it enough," writes Mrs. Wm. Greenhalgh, of Colfax, Jasper Co., Iowa, "and I think it is the best medicine for female weakness; it is worth its weight in gold.

"You are at liberty to use this testimonial if you wish."

"ED" GARDNER, THE CONQUEROR OF THRESHIE, AT BILLIARDS

Below is a photograph of Edward W. Gardner, of Passaic, N. J., taken expressly for the BOSTON AMERICAN.

Gardner is considered one of the finest followers of the green baize game in the business. He can perform all kinds of stunts, both at pools and billiards, but it is at the latter game that he has won the bulk of his reputation.

It was only last Friday that Gardner played Charley Threshie, the well-known Hub billiardist. In this match, which was played in the National Amateur billiard tourney, the man from the "land of the mosquitoes" whipped his Boston opponent by a score of 300 to 190.

There was a double foul in the match between Gardner and Threshie, which probably doesn't happen in two tourneys in a lifetime.

In the twenty-third inning, as Gardner stepped to the table, the score stood 271 to 190 in his favor. Gardner made the shot with Threshie's cue ball.

Referee Thorne immediately called a foul, in accordance with the agreement made before the tourney started that the referee is to protect the interests of the non-shooter.

Then Threshie shot with his own ball, instead of the still ball. Referee Thorne immediately called a foul on Threshie.

Gardner is now fourth in the tourney standing, with two games won and one lost.

JIMMY BRIGGS IS IN SHAPE FOR HIS BOUT WITH LEWIS

It will not be such a dull week in boxing for the local fans as some shows are scheduled that have a good sound to them and the performers are up at the top of the ladder in reputation.

With such a favorite as Jimmy Briggs in the inclosure at the Douglas A. C. tomorrow night, the Dybian Rink should be heavily taxed, especially as Willie Lewis, a lightweight with a long ring record which was enhanced recently by putting Martin Canole, of Fall River, away in nine rounds. This act by Lewis sent his stock soaring, and he has been besieged by matchmakers all over the country, as he was a recognized drawing card. It was left to the Douglas management to secure Lewis and as it was an easy trip over from New York to meet Briggs, Lewis was willing to take chances of having his record spoiled. It will be a battle of ring masters who know all the points of the game, and, what will please the spectators, have little time for stalling tactics, but go in to get the verdict at short notice. It will be a strong test for Briggs, but he has been under fire too many times to let Lewis get away from him.

Principal Bouts Carded This Week

TUESDAY.

Jimmy Briggs vs. Willie Lewis, Hill; Clinton vs. Young Schinder, and J. Powers vs. Mahana, Douglas A. C., Charles. Joe Gans vs. Dixie Kid, Lancaster, Penn.

Jimmy Kelly vs. Mike Ward, Grand Rapids.

WEDNESDAY.

Pinky Evans vs. Rosco O'Brien, T. Quill vs. Billy Elmer, and Johnny Powers vs. Young Sullivan, Brockton.

FRIDAY.

Mattie Baldwin vs. Young Kenny at Lawrence.

George Gardner vs. Mike Sheeck at Salt Lake City.

Abe Attell vs. Tommy Howatt at Oshkosh, Wis.

Maurice Sayres vs. Charles Neary, Milwaukee.

Kid Reed vs. Kid Sullivan, Baltimore.

Alick MacLean is looking after the winner of the O'Brien-Evans match and figures that George Murray would be a proper boy to take his measure.

* * *

Club managers say that many of the "pavilion" boys have too many matchmakers and are shy accepting some of the talent that is looking for bouts. Most of these lads box with the numerous managers will find themselves in a bad way to secure bouts if they continue in this way.

* * *

Down at Brockton on Wednesday night comes a star bout with those stellar bantams Rosco O'Brien of South Boston and "Pinkie" Evans mixed up. This match has awakened widespread interest for several reasons. It will be the meeting of two of the foremost bantams in the country and they are matched at the limit weight of 116 pounds.

* * *

Then Evans is booked to go to the other side, and it is likely to be the last chance to see him in action before losing Joe Bowker in London.

The result will affect the career of either boy, and its importance adds zest to the bout. A defeat would mar Evans' trip abroad and lose him caste on this side, while O'Brien, who is looking for the highest honors in his class, must win in order to dispute Kid Wallin for the title.

* * *

A big delegation will go down from South Boston and from this city, as it will be possible to return by a late train.

Two eight-round bouts will make up the preliminary part of the show, and with the fifteen-round main affair there will be plenty doing for an evening's entertainment.

SLUGGER MASON IS NEEDED AS COACH

Frank (Slugger) Mason is the man a large majority of Harvard's graduates and students wants to see on the coaching force of the institution this year.

Probably there is no Harvard graduate who is more admired or more respected for what he has done for Harvard in the past in actual harness.

It was in '02 that Mason, jumped into the breach and caught Jack Highlands after waiting for years for a chance to show what he could do as a backstop, and after the mighty Jack had maimed or killed off all the other candidates. In the Spring of '03 Mason was confined to the Cambridge hospital with a case of scarlet fever, and stayed there for ten weeks, but he joined the team as soon as he got out. As a baseball coach Mason pulled Jimmie Beane's team out of a hole last year. It was being beaten by small colleges, and inside of a few weeks defeated the Yale Freshmen two straight games. The next year he started the system of the employment of professional coaches to teach the men which has been closely followed ever since, and which has beaten Yale yearly. Mason also furnished together with Lewis devised the defense that broke up Yale's vaunted guard back formation, which defeated Harvard for several years.

Mason also furnished a good share of the honor that made the Harvard team of '00, '01, '02, '03, so successful. His ability as a coach has been demonstrated by what he has done to Harvard during the last few years with the Dartmouth eleven, which has outplayed, tied and defeated the Crimson. Harvard men now realize that Mason knew pretty well what he was talking about when he criticised Boles' coaching methods at Harvard at the time he was requested to consider the Crimson backyard men in general feel that a man who can work for Harvard as a player under difficult conditions and can coach winning baseball and football teams for her afterwards and then turn round and take a small college eleven and practically treat the same team three in succession is a proper person to have on Harvard's coaching force if such a thing is possible.

'CORBETT' WILL MEET NELSON AGAIN FEB. 28

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—Battling Nelson and Young Corbett" have agreed to meet at Woodward's Pavilion, February 28, at 120 pounds at 4 o'clock. This is the same weight at which they fought in their previous bouts, when "Corbett" was obliged to quit at the end of ten rounds.

Although it has not yet been decided who the referee will be, in all likelihood Jack Welch will be promoted for the position. In fact, negotiations are now pending between the club officials and Welch and if he said can pretty good authority that Welch will perform the trick.

"Young Corbett" says he will hie himself to the woods this time and train in earnest, which he didn't do when he met the Dane before. In his last bout, "Corbett" was in anything but good condition, and he knows that if he can whip Nelson this time, it will boost his stock away up.

YALE HAS BIG SQUAD OUT FOR THE BASEBALL TEAM

Special to the Sunday American.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 4.—Yale's baseball men have at last got to work, making the last of the athletic squads for the Spring of 1905 to report. Billy Lush, the Cleveland left fielder, is in charge of the cage work and his contract calls for his presence here till July 1. This is the first time that Yale has had a professional to direct the coaching for the entire season. John Clarkson, Charley Hickman and Charley Nichols of the National League were here several years till they were called to report at the opening of the season, but Lush will not leave the Yale players till the college season closes.

Captain Bowman and Lush are handling the men in the cage and the varsity players of last season are also on hand to help in the coaching. During the first week of coaching, which has just passed, many newcomers have been called out, the freshman candidates of last season and the varsity candidates for the battery positions.

Big List of Candidates.

The first practice night men at work, divided into three squads. Walter Camp, who this Spring takes the same position he holds in football with relation to the baseball nine, will do no active coaching, but will act as general adviser. Bowman will run the team as captain.

Lush will be the professional coach of the nine in the sense that Mike Murphy is of the track team and John Kennedy is of the crew. His engagement marks the formation of a new system in baseball coaching at Yale which will be permanent.

The most important work done the past week has been to root out all the pitching material which could be located in the university. At present five promising pitchers are on the field and others who were both in the games against Harvard last year, are the best known, but the freshman team of last year remained together over summer and are doing well under the tutelage of Lush. There are Irwin, Erskine and Perry. With this outfield and Captain Bowman to go into the box for the first few games in a pinch Yale faces her schedule of thirty-seven games for the season without fear.

Behind the Bat.

Behind the bat the situation is by no means hopeless. Captain Winslow, of last year's nine, was really crippled last season as the result of a football injury, and unable to do his best work. Two good men have been turned up in the cage since the candidates reported last Tuesday—Arthur Erwin and Lasley. Both are looked for a substitute catcher on the varsity a year ago, but had a condition in his studies and served out of the game. Erwin was substitute football guard last year, and, tipping the scales at 190 pounds, is an ideal backstop now that he has trained down to that weight. Lasley, who left the freshmen last season, is doing first class work in the cage.

Another catcher who can be depended on is Rockwell, a younger brother of Rockwell, the football quarterback. He is now on the basketball team, and will play the nine with the close of the basketball games. Rockwell caught for Exeter while he attended the academy there, and did the backstop work in the thirty mile Yale two years ago and for for the Yale second team last year. Rockwell's ambition is to win three "Y's" while he is in college. Captain Morgan Bowman, the baseball captain, football fullback and broad jumper, and it, and Captain Bowman of the football team, baseball field and shot-putter, will turn the trick. Rockwell has played football three years, has no playing basketball, and, if he can hold the varsity baseball team, he will equal the record which only three Yale athletes have attained—Bowman, Sheviin and O. D. Thompson, '79.

Bowman on First Base.

Yale expects little trouble in filling the other vacant places on the team. Captain Bowman will hold first base. He would like to be able to play on the pitcher's box for good and except in an emergency he is likely to have his wishes regarded. One change talked of is putting third baseman Hulskamp over to second as he is a left hander and handles himself poorly at third.

Frank O'Brien will again cover short stop and the man most likely to take third base on his left is Captain Church of the freshman nine last year. Carter, the basketball player, who played a fine game at first last year's freshman nine, brother of Captain Carter of last year's nine, will try for the third bag.

Yale has a fast outfield composed of Jay Barnes and Bruce Smith of last year's nine and Captain Hinkman and Bassman of the freshman nine last year, will be a formidable candidate for the outfield this Spring. Kinney, the Andover second baseman of last year, is now on the basketball team and will try for second base on the varsity this Spring.

BIG SANDY IS BACK FROM HOT SPRINGS

Sandy Ferguson is back in town.

The big heavyweight, after a sojourn to the Hot Springs, where he met "Texas" Jim McCormack, arrived in the Hub to-day.

"Those stories about my biting McCormack are untrue," said Sandy, with unusual earnestness. "I never bit anyone in my life, and I guess I didn't go and chew my big stoke like him.

"There was nothing to the fight but me. All I had to do was to jab with my left, and McCormack, who is one of the biggest men I ever saw in action, kept his distance.

"It was in the fourth, when 'Mac' was bleeding about the eyes and mouth, that I did my best work. I sailed into him right and left, and it looked as though I would finish him out.

"When the fifth opened up I continued my jabbing, and I knew that I had he had to do something quick or lose the fight, so he rushed in, grabbed me below the hips and threw me over the ropes.

"When I got to my feet I called the 'Texas Steer' about everything but a fighter, and I rushed the big Canuck and McCormack in his corner, crying 'Let me at him.' I didn't know what was doing for a minute, and the referee walked over to me, raised my glove and declared me the winner.

"McCormack, after the fight, said he wasn't treated right. I will guarantee to knock him out, any place in the country, inside of six rounds, or forfeit the entire purse."

Sandy will probably be matched to meet John Willie Ferfore the same night the Social and Athletic Club, of Brockton, February 22.

OFFICIAL HOCKEY GUIDE.

Spalding's Official Hockey Guide for 1905 has been published. It contains half-tone pictures of all the prominent hockey teams in this country, with the names and records of their players, the teams of Pittsburg, Pa., as well as the champion team of Canada. "How to Play Hockey," by Arthur Farrell, of Montreal, Canada, is interesting reading. The official guide also contains the constitution of the American Hockey League, the laws of hockey and the championship rules.

SMALL TALK FOR BASEBALL FANS

A meeting of the New Bedford Baseball League was held and a schedule arranged for the season. The league consists of eight clubs and the season will begin about April 29. Captain Silver, of the New England American, one of the best pitchers in the organization, has got command of the "spit" ball, which he hopes to use successfully on his opponents.

* * *

Ned Hanlon has cut down his original squad considerably and now announces that he will take only twenty-eight men with him to the training ground at Columbus, Ga.

Sheckard and Lumley will play left and right field, respectively, for the Brooklyn this year, and Gessler, Dobbs and Maloy will fight it out for centre field. No decision has been reached regarding the infield, and but of the fourteen pitchers now under the club's control Hanlon hopes to find at least six good ones.

Indignant over the conduct of certain players on the team in 1904, Hanlon announces that his former policy of moral suasion will be supplemented by the strictest of discipline, and all offenders may expect to suffer.

* * *

While no official list has been given out about the American League schedule for the season of 1905, with the possible exception of what was said at the National Commission meeting, it begins to look as though Cleveland will have one of the opening dates in the American League schedule, which is on Friday, April 14. Should Cleveland open the season Detroit will be the attraction, and a warm series may be expected; in fact, warm enough to keep the frozen spectators from freezing a few stones.

Should President Ban Johnson decide that Cleveland will be honored with the opening date it will be the first time in the history of the game that the baseball season begin on April 14. This is far too early for a game in Cleveland, and for about the right time to begin in the South. With warm weather the club owners can smile, but with the temperature hovering below the freezing point, as it was the case in Chicago last Spring, it will not only go hard with the owners of the team, but the players as well.

Manager Mike Finn, of the Toledo club of the American Association, had a talk with "Red" Calhoun, the well-known baseball player, in Pittsburg, whom Toledo drafted from the Haverhill club, of the New England League. Red had reached the ears of Finn that Calhoun was contemplating signing with the Harrisburg Independent team for next season, having received a flattering offer from Manager Hamilton of that club, under whom he played in Haverhill last season. It took the Toledo manager only a few minutes to convince the auburn-haired Calhoun that it would be to his advantage to tie up with the Ohio Mud Hens, and a contract was duly signed.

Robert A. Unglaub, the crack young utility man of the Boston Americans, who is wintering at Critchell, Md., reiterates the statement that he will begin playing in a Spring series of games with the Giants for the world's championship. Like Tannehill and several other clever players, he points out that an early series might result in great harm to the men, who would undoubtedly overexert themselves and undergo a strain that might end their usefulness in the game for the season, Unglaub writes:

"While I have no objection to earning an honest dollar in the Spring, still, if I am to demonstrate the gilt edge quality of my wife's worth and, in my opinion, the public must be considered first of all. Moreover, the players could not deliver their best goods in the Spring, for you know that they would not 'cut loose' for fear of straining themselves."

HARVARD TEAM TO MEET YALE AT B. A. A. GAMES

Judging by the number of tickets already disposed of, there will be a full house at Mechanics' Building, Saturday night when, the B. A. A. games will be run off. The race between Harvard and Yale will undoubtedly be the finest event on the programme, as any competition between these two colleges is bound to excite great interest.

Yale won the relay race from Harvard last year, but this time the Crimson quartet will make extraordinary efforts to wrest the honors from their perennial rivals. Harvard also will try hard to win over the Penn team. Harvard has not yet fully decided what runners it will use in the races.

A telegram has been sent to Ralph Rose, the wonderful performer of the Chicago A. A., to compete in the games, and Herbert Bolton says the chances are in favor of his accepting the request. The management says that all the events will be fully contested and that many records are bound to go by the boards.

TO ACTS ON PROTESTS.

A special meeting of the executive committee of the New England skating association will be held Thursday evening at 17 Dana street, Cambridge, to consider the protests made by the Mechanics Arts High and Roxbury High against Arlington High, and those of Rindge Manual Training and Melrose High against English High.

CONSTITUTION MAY START IN RACE FOR THE KAISER'S CUP

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Aware of the fact that only one American boat has entered the race for the Kaiser's cup, and that one not the strongest craft of the country, members of the New York Y. C. are talking of fitting out the Constitution with a ketch rig and having C. Oliver Iselin or some other competent American skipper manage her.

Mr. Iselin, however, says that it would be necessary to change the entire business interests in order to take charge of the boat. Therefore, the members of the club have tried to induce some one else to take A. to compete in the games, and Herbert Bolton says the chances are in favor of his accepting the request. The management says that all the events will be fully contested and that many records are bound to go by the boards.

Racing men in the local yachting clubs say it is all very well for the Kaiser to want to race, but that he must have "model cruisers." But they point out that his specific stipulations are in line with those called for required two tons Canadian Universal measurement rule, for the cup defender type, and the truest handicapper cannot help showing up which style of boat will carry it he stops and thinks what would have happened to Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock if she had attempted to follow the Reliance and Shamrock III. over the thirty mile Sandy Hook course.

A prominent member of the New York Yacht Club, and an enthusiast in racing, said in regard to the coming race:

Model Boats.

"The Kaiser hopes the race will help ship models. But American shipbuilders don't build 'model' ships for racing. Even the primitive Indian had two kinds of canoes, one for travelling and another for his household. And the same distinction is shown in the highest types of present-day shipbuilding—the fleet Deutschland and the huge Baltic. A cargo carrier or a pleasure yacht is not a racer, and the sailing yacht that can beat Sandy Hook and reach the Lizard in the quickest time belongs to the latter class.

"America has always led well proved their supremacy, and in support of this country's yachting prestige an earnest attempt should be made to bring the Emperor's Cup over here.

"As it is out of the question for the ingenar steamer to be in May, it is up to the Constitution. She has beaten the Columbia, and her only vanquisher, the Reliance, must be saved to defend one of America's cup, either as a defender or a challenger.

"The Constitution is housed at City Island, and, I understand, is as good as when she took her maiden plunge. She is strongly built, and her only accident was a broken topmast, which snapped during a race with the Reliance. In her trials she showed she could stand the gaff of a heavy sail plan and strong winds, and the race is set for a date when, in all probability, there will be smooth seas and steady southwest winds."

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

FOR a number of years it has been my privilege and pleasure to answer through the columns of the Hearst newspapers the questions of countless correspondents in regard not only to matters of the heart, but to all important concerns of life.

The time has now come when I feel that I must share with my readers whatever wisdom I may have gained from this experience. My letter box, with its thousands of appeals from the perplexed, the unfortunate and the broken-hearted everywhere, has become during this time a treasure house of human experience.

And from all the wounded hearts that I have for years tried to heal, all the pitiful situations that I have tried to remedy and all the difficulties that I have tried to clear away, a certain knowledge of men and women has come to me which I now wish to put to practical use.

This information I now offer my readers in a series of ten articles of convenient size to be kept and consulted so often as difficulties shall arise.

In writing this series I yield to the repeated urging of thousands of my correspondents, the winning of whose approval will now be my only object. Your sincere friend. Beatrice Fairfax.

Is Your Love Returned?

UNCERTAINTY is the chief difficulty that confronts the young lover. Let him not forget that apparent coldness often masks a deeper interest than evident friendship.

IT is well to be sure that your love is returned before you take even your dearest friend into your confidence. Do not imperil your dignity by discussing these affairs of the heart so long as you are in a state of uncertainty. For some curious psychological reason chattering about one's love affairs is invariably fatal to their development.

Having made up your mind to control this instinctive desire to prattle about that which most nearly concerns you, you may apply a little intelligent observation to discover whether the object of your affections reciprocates your feeling. This being ascertained so far as is possible, you may risk the question that you have been burning to ask.

There are certain of the outward and visible signs to be consulted by the anxious lover. One of these is a manifest desire for your society, which may be displayed quite unconsciously by the most modest of maidens. You may also watch carefully her manner at your approach. A young girl in love or on the brink of it cannot conceal a certain trepidation and fluttering, with perhaps a blush or two. Any of these signs you may construe as flattering to your hopes.

Outward and Visible Signs That Are to Be Trusted.

Do not lose heart completely if she manifests in your presence a marked interest in the society of some other man. Such an action will probably be due either to pardonably coquetry or to a desire to disarm you of your belief that she is in love with you.

If is, I have discovered, an invariable rule that the girl who is in love will, whatever her manner may be, seize every opportunity to look at the man that has inspired her affection. Indeed, it is practically impossible for her to keep her eyes turned in any other direction provided he be present. You may often surprise her in this and draw your own conclusions.

If your own feeling is sincere, she will, if she is a true woman, realize it and honor you accordingly. Every woman worthy of the name knows that love is the best and most beautifying thing in the world, and she cannot be offended at the presence of it.

Beware of False Friends They Make Half the Trouble

Then there is another point—this one for the timid lover. If a woman is willing to hear a proposal once, may she not be equally willing the second time?

A woman whom you truly love is too precious to be given up after one rebuff. She may have been mistaken in her feelings. Wait, use all your ingenuity to please her in quiet ways, await a favorable occasion and try your luck again. Many a woman has been won in this fashion.

At least it is worth while to suffer a little pang of mortified vanity for the sake of obtaining the greatest thing in the world.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I love a young man. The only objection I have is that my lady friends don't care for him, because he is not handsome and never spends anything on me because he gives most of his money to his parents and can't save much. Don't you think this young man ought to give less to his folks, so he could have some money to spend and to save, as his folks really don't need all he gives? Kindly tell me what to do, whether I should give him up or not. M. R.

MY dear, you are a foolish girl. What do you care whether your girl friends admire him or not? The young man is doing his duty by his parents, and if you loved him you would be the last to urge him to do otherwise. You cannot judge as to how much help his people need. You should be very thankful to have won the love of such a fine man. Of course, it would be nice if he could have something, but as long as he is obliged to help his parents he probably will not be able to.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met a young man when I was nineteen years old and we fell in love with each other, but for some reason which I cannot understand he has not proposed to me. He claimed to love me dearly then, and told me so frankly, and also asked me if I cared for him, but no suggestion of marriage followed that several. Do you think a young man with honorable intentions would act that way? He also flirted with other girls, because he said he thought it did not matter and he had a right to do it, and told me it did not change his feelings toward me; he thought just as much of me, he said, and still he knew it hurt just as much as though he had stabbed me. We have had several quarrels about it (I mean regarding his actions, but he has always made some excuse. He went away two years ago because I treated him a little mean, but we corresponded for almost a year, then he came to our town to see me and was there two weeks. During that time he rode to see me six times and renewed his avowals of love and loyalty, but nothing about marriage. A HEARTBROKEN GIRL.

LET him think you do not care for him and make up your mind to do so. I do not think he has been at all honorable to you, and he is not worth all the worry or thought you have spent on him. If you cannot forget, at least make the best of it, and try to be interested in some one worth while.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-one years old and have had two sweethearts during my life, one of which I have known for only two years, and during these two years I have shown her much attention. But recently I have been paying more real attention to the girl I first loved. My old love has come back to me and I don't care the least for the other girl, though I am sure she loves me. We have never spoken of love to each other. We are not living in the same town now, but are corresponding with each other. I wish you would advise me how to show her I don't care for her any longer and hurt her feelings as little as possible. Would you write her that you do not care for her any longer?

R. P. B.

IF you have never spoken of love to her, you are not, of course, bound to her in any way, but there is such a thing as unspoken love, you know, and you may have unconsciously led the girl to believe that you cared for her. Do not tell her that you do not care for her; that would be rather brutal. Make your letters shorter and rarer, and you may be sure she will soon suspect that you do not care for her as you used to. Be very sure of the state of your affections before you take any decisive step.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a young lady just about a year and like her very much. I have asked her several times if she loved me and she has said she thought more of me than any other fellow, but yet she thought a good deal of some other fellows also. I noticed once or twice when I had engagements with her and when the time came she wrote and told me she had got unexpected company that day and could not keep her date. But when I asked her who it was I found out it was a fellow whom she likes quite a good deal. Now do you think a girl would do anything like that if she cared for me? Then, another thing, I gave her a very pretty Christmas present and she took it and thanked me, but never gave me any in return or did not say she was sorry or that she had none to return. She is very reticent to me many times, and then there are times when she is very nice. Now, Miss Fairfax, what I would like to know is: Do you think if she does care more for me than some other fellow, as she says, she would act this way? And if you were in my place would you tell her you wanted her to stop going with these other fellows, or what would you do? H. I.

IF I were in your place I would pay no more attention to a girl who behaved in this way. Just leave her alone. I don't think she is worth bothering about, and I am sure the affection she professes for you is not sincere. About the Christmas present I think you display rather a mean spirit to expect a gift in return for yours. You could not have given your present with the right spirit.

EXQUISITE NEW PARISIAN NOVELTY

THIS charming visiting costume is a Parisian model. The gown is of royal blue faced cloth with a bolero of draped blue velvet. The chief charm of the gown is its originality of design. A double skirt, the upper part cut with a tucker running up the front of the waist, gives the effect of a trimmed gown. Wide double tucks extend around the edge of the top skirt. The lower skirt is cut with a medium sweep.

The bolero of draped blue velvet is trimmed with silk braid, which matches in color. The sleeves are full puffs, slashed beneath the arms and gathered on either side, revealing in under sleeve of Alencon lace. A black beaver picture hat completes this stylish visiting costume.

WHAT WORK CAN I DO IN MY HOUR OF NEED?

A Woman's Plea, Alas, All Too Common—Who Can Answer It?

"For better, for worse, till death do us part."

It is in time of stress or sickness of her husband that these words are fraught with special significance to a woman.

How can a woman earn money to help her husband? Ordinarily a woman is not expected to be the wage-earner in the house, but in case the husband cannot possibly provide the household funds, the brave and true helpmate asserts her money making ability.

From Cambridge comes a letter from just such a brave wife. She asks the readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN to suggest some way to her by which she can earn money to help her husband.

Women who have earned money at home, and all readers of the AMERICAN, may write freely to the paper, and by so doing may help this good, brave little woman in her time of stress.

Address all letters to the Editor of Woman's Page, BOSTON AMERICAN, No 80 Summer street.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am a constant reader of your paper, and in a puzzle that now, and I am sending in four vast army of readers and subscribers I am a young married woman and am passing through a crisis of bad luck. My husband cannot get work to do, and as I am a little handicapped toward the household expenses these hard times, could your readers suggest anything that I could do? I can do plain sewing, but I mean the newspapers "boasts" day after day and never see anything in them but housework, and this is just where the puzzle comes in. What can a woman do to help earn an honest living nowadays. Please answer this and oblige. MRS. N. D.

GIRL'S YOKE DRESS

No. 4,622—One of the newest features in little girls' frocks is the yoke, and the model of this season's dress is as accurate as to make certain that the lower portion of the dress, when plaited or gathered, fits the upper portion with all possible ease. The back of the yoke is shaped somewhat like a little bolero, which is particularly becoming to childish figures. In dispensing with the trouble-some fitting of the lower portion of the dress the mother's time is greatly economized.

The dress illustrated is made of white dimity, which washes well and is reasonably durable. The tiny tucked yoke is outlined around the little V neck and the lower edge with a narrow insertion, which also edges the narrow tucked cuff. The dress is fastened in front with small pearl buttons and double buttonholes. A sash of ribbon or linen could be worn with the dress, if more effect is preferred, a slight full gudge of soft lawn may be worn, or the yoke extended to the regulation high neck and finished with a ruffle or collar.

As the inexpensive washable materials are the most fashionable for pearliest, every-day wear, the model here given is particularly adapted to such needs. Gingham, percale or nainsook are all well suited for children's clothing, as a good quality of chambray of a fast, durable color. It carries with it a certain style that will always make it a favorite.

Sizes—2 to 8 years.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN will mail the pattern to any address on receipt of 10 cents, to cover cost of handling.

All orders should be directed to HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 230, Boston, Mass.

The Girl Across the Way

By Grif Alexander

JACK HANSON was printing steamer cards on a lithographic handpress. He then dampened the stone, inked the roller and then the stone, set the cards to the lines, put on the top cover, pulled down the tympan, shored in the carriage, pulled down the lever turned the handle, lifted up the lever, pulled out the carriage, lifted up the tympan, removed the overlay, and lifted up the cards with the aid of an eraser such as he repeated the process.

And again. And again. And not once did he think of what he was doing, for his thoughts, and, for a large part of the time his eyes, were on a young woman who was working a typewriter in an office on the other side of the street. A pretty young woman with nut-brown hair and delicate features and eyes that seemed to sparkle even at so great a distance.

Jack was in love. He admitted it to himself. It began when he took his present position two months ago. She had come to the window and smiled at him. It was probably "a left-over smile," one not intended for him at all, but it filled his heart with gladness. At all events, he pleasantly thought, she had not changed it to a frown when she found that she was looking at him and he was looking at her.

She had not smiled at him since that one time, but he had caught her eye on several occasions, whereupon she would flush a little and get very busy with her typewriter.

From the early day of his apprenticeship Jack had taken much joy in long-distance flirting. Ever so many young men and women in office and factory buildings have some practice in the gentle art. One may say just what he pleases, or a nod, or the flutter of a handkerchief. But here Jack's clerkship availed him nothing. This was "different." He was in love, and it was different.

He had never spoken to her, had never even seen her on the street. With some circumspection he had learned that the elevator boy in the building opposite that she quit work at 5 o'clock. He didn't get through until 5:30. On two occasions he lay off his afternoon and bought flowers and made up his mind to waylay her.

But his courage always failed him, and, having bought the flowers, he would shame-facedly walk home with them and give them to the landlady at his boarding home. The landlady liked Jack, and she thought it was very nice of him to bring flowers to decorate the table. The young lady in the case never suspected what she was missing.

Of all these things he thought as he printed steamer cards, and while he thought the stone got greasy and the letters filled up, which fact, when it finally dawned upon him, caused him to get busy with pickle and nitric acid. This happened several times at long intervals, and when at last the boss stopped to examine the work there was nothing left on the stone but some indistinct lines and a few smudges. Jack, without shame, had been going on running the cards with cheerful but mechanical industry.

"What in thunder is the meaning of this?" asked the boss.

"She's been at the window for fifteen minutes," said Jack.

"What?"

Jack came to earth, blushed and stammered.

"Sort those cards out and put the lad once on the sign. What's the matter with you to-day, anyhow?"

"I guess it's a slight heart affection," said Jack.

The boss walked off with a red face. "I'll have to go to the trouble of getting another stone made ready," he grumbled.

When Mr. Smith accepted his position as foreman in Cook & Ryder's big lithographing establishment he had taken Jack along with him, feeling him to be a competent and trustworthy; but he didn't know what had come into Jack during the last couple of months, and was beginning to fear that he would have to discharge him.

Jack sorted out the cards, making two piles of them. And while he sorted the girl over the way industriously worked at the typewriter. Presently a young man went up to her and placed his hand familiarly on her shoulder, and by and by began stroking her hair caressingly as he talked to her. Jack bolted over with indignation.

"I'd like to smash that yellow-haired dude," he said to himself, but he went on sorting the cards.

When Mr. Smith returned Jack put his hand on the small pile of cards and said: "These are the bad." Mr. Smith looked relieved. Jack had a don't-care-if-the-school-keeps-or-not expression as he put his hand on the big pile and said: "And these are the very bad."

Mr. Smith's eyes seemed about to start from his head for a moment, and then he laughed and walked away. A sense of humor has averted many a quarrel.

"I'm through with her forever," said Jack to himself. "I don't care whether I stay here or not. I don't care for anything, not I."

"Jack," said the shipping clerk, "I wish you'd give me a hand with this paper, it weighs nothing else to do."

"Sure thing," said Jack. The shipping clerk was downstairs and Jack went to the hatchway. He hated to walk downstairs when he could slide down the rope, or let his weight carry him down on the rope. The tackle was constructed for the slow hoisting of heavy weights, and when Jack hung to the hook his speed down the hatchway was swift enough to be exciting and yet not swift enough to hurt.

Sometimes he grabbed the rope as he passed the first floor and allowed himself to touch the ground softly. More often he let the brake alone, so that when the drum kept on revolving the rope would coil up again and he would shoot skyward with it. This never failed to startle people who happened to be passing.

This time, instead of grabbing the hook with one hand as was his wont, he put his foot on it and caught hold of the rope higher up. When the brake was released he also down the hatchway at a lively rate.

Half-way down he heard the cry of "Mad dog" from the street. He stepped down and involuntarily grabbed for the brake. But before he pulled it he saw a girl dart into the hallway and instinctively knew it to be the girl from over the way. He never thought of the brake again.

Down he whizzed, as he touched the floor the dog started toward the girl, a policeman in pursuit. The girl shrieked and rushed toward Jack, who clasped her in his arms. The rope coiled on the ground for a brief moment and then shot up again, carrying Jack and the girl to safety.

"Grab the brake," cried Jack, and promptly the girl obeyed. And there they hung while the policeman killed the dog beneath them. The girl's coolness was remarkable. Only for a moment did Jack have to sustain her weight. She had presently taken hold of the rope. And only a minute more they required to swing to the hallway. The dog once dead they were quickly lowered.

"You are brave," said the girl.

"The same to you," said Jack.

The girl lifted up her face before letting go of the rope and swiftly kissed him. She had gone before he recovered his breath.

That afternoon when he looked across the street at her, her smile was frank and warm. He quit work an hour earlier and bought some roses that his landlady failed to get.

Together they walked up Broadway and talked of many things. They also indulged in some eloquent silences.

"Tell me," he said at last, "——who is that young fellow with yellow hair who was talking to you to-day?"

"Why, that is my brother," she said simply.

And a load was lifted from Jack's heart.

WESTERN MEN URGE PASSAGE OF HEARST BILL

Disregard Politics in Working for What They Consider Best Measure.

ILLINOIS JOINS IN FIGHT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Representative business men of Chicago, members of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, the most powerful organization of its kind in the country, have reached Washington, and to-day they call on the President to impress on him the necessity for railroad freight rate legislation, and to say that the Hearst bill embodies all that is needed to correct the evil.

The committee, which left Chicago over the Pennsylvania railroad yesterday, is composed of the following men, all representative manufacturers of Chicago and Illinois: John F. Winter, president; Winter & Co., J. R. Diffenbaugh, Monmouth, Ill.; L. C. Rundell, Jacksonville, Ill.; C. H. Pierre, Moline, Ill.; F. F. Simmonds, Chicago; Nathaniel Leverone, Davenport, Iowa; W. Morain, of the Morgan Company; C. H. Gibson, of the McNeil & Higgins Company; C. H. Smith, Aurora; John W. Gleen, secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association.

Movement Not Political.

Speaking of the committee of which Glenn, who is secretary of the association, said to-day:

"We want legislation. The Hearst bill meets the requirements with me, and this is the opinion of many members of the association. We do not know anything about this Esch-Townsend bill.

"Remember, this is not a political commission. I can say that I know the politics of only one member of the committee. What we are after is legislation. We want to impress the Illinois members with this."

A copy of the following resolution has been handed the President by the committee:

First—Give the Interstate Commerce Commission power to declare what rate, regulation, classification or practice would be just and reasonable.

Third—Fix and force an equitable relation of rates, rules, regulations and classifications as between one locality and town and another city or section, and also as between commodities, and in case of disagreement between carriers to fix such a joint rate upon the aggregate thereof as will determine the proportion to be received by each carrier.

Fourth—When carriers voluntarily reduce a rate, to hesitate effective only five days' published notice, provide that when a rate is once reduced it shall not be advanced except upon forty-five days' notice by publication of tariff.

Fifth—Give the Interstate Commerce Commission power to enforce its order in the premises.

Sixth—Provide for a speedy appeal by either party and for a speedy determination of such appeal.

PRESIDENT TUTTLE OF THE B. & M. ROAD TO BE HEARD TO-DAY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The members of the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce to-day is expected to be of great importance, for the reason that there will be called as witnesses President Charles Tuttle, of the Boston & Maine railroad, and Messrs. Elkins and Robbins, representing the Armour car lines.

If President Tuttle should be present, as expected, he undoubtedly will give some indication of the kind of a bill which the railroads would like to have passed. If any bill is agreed to by the railroads.

Mr. Tuttle is considered to be a great power in New England and has been sent for so as to have his views published for the benefit of New England Senators and members of the lower house.

ADAMOWSKIS IN SUNDAY MUSIC

By Kent Perkins.

Jordan hall was crowded at the sixth Sunday chamber concert under the direction of H. G. Tucker, yesterday afternoon, the artists being the Adamowski Trio, Mrs. Szumowska and Messers Thuthee and Josef Adamowski. Two selections were played here for the first time, a trio, op. 17, by Paul Juon, and a romance for the cello, by Arensky.

Juon is a young Russian composer, who now lives in Berlin. His trio was interesting, but not noteworthy. It was played with spirit and good expression, but more practice in ensemble will improve the trio's work on it. The second movement, an adagio, was the most pleasing of the three portions of the piece.

Arensky's Romance, telling a pretty but unhappy story, was played by J. Adamowski with his lyrical feeling. Mme. Szumowska was heard with pleasure in three Chopin selections, and J. Adamowski gave Beethoven's Romanza and Mendelssohn's Andante from the work on the former being the best of the whole concert. Two movements from Goldmark's trio, in E minor, closed the program.

At the seventh concert next Sunday afternoon, the Longy Club will be heard.

ON LONE ISLE 12 YEARS FOR BEET

BUFFALO, Feb. 6.—After living a Robinson Crusoe existence for more than twelve years on Pinckney island, one of the Bass islands, to pay an election bet made during the Cleveland-Harrison campaign in 1892, Samuel R. Dean has arrived in Buffalo.

The terms of the wager were that if he lost he was to live on the most desolate spot he could find in the Thousand Islands until a Republican President had been elected three times successively. Although supplied with provisions, Dean was allowed to see no human being except the ferryman who brought supplies every six months.

Mr. Dean made the bet with the Hon. Frederick R. Peters in a club in London, Ont. the Englishman lost he was to have led the same existence on the Scotland Islands until a Democratic President was elected thrice.

LEOPOLD QUARRELS WITH PRINCESS CLEMENTINE

HRH. PRINCESS CLEMENTINE.

BELGIAN KING LEOPOLD'S DAUGHTER.

Princess Clementine and her father are reported estranged on account of the proposal of marriage made to her by Prince Victor Napoleon, head of the Bonapartist house in France.

Belgian King and Last of Unmarried Daughters Estranged Because of Her Love for Prince Victor.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Feb. 6.—The Petit Bleu confirms the report current some weeks ago that Prince Victor Napoleon, head of the Bonapartist house, has proposed to the Princess Clementine, youngest daughter of King Leopold. The paper adds that King Leopold and the Princess refused over the matter, and the Princess has now gone to the South of France to live.

The above dispatch probably marks a break between King Leopold and the last of his unmarried daughters.

Both his daughters are now estranged from their father, owing to the attachment of them and the late Queen, their mother. The Princess Clementine is now thirty-two years of age, and a woman of marked determination. She is declared to be romantic and if she formed a strong attachment for Prince Victor it is highly probable she would gladly forfeit her life at the court for a life in exile with the man she loved.

Prince Victor is the imperial pretender to the French throne. This fact alone would be sufficient to cause Leopold to object to the match. Acquiescence on his part in the betrothal between his daughter and the pretender to the French throne would herald doom came feeling existed Leopold on the part of the French government. At present France and Belgium are on the best of terms politically. Leopold knows his throne is rather shaky, and therefore would wish to avoid any possibility of losing the support of France, his strongest friend.

SOCIETY FOLK TO OCCUPY NEW HOMES

Andersons Soon to Move to Washington—William Pattens Come Into Boston.

PREPARING FOR DOG SHOW

Labor troubles, from which not even the highest circles of society are exempt, and which have kept the Lars Andersons from occupying their new residence in Washington, have abated in this case, for Mr. Andersen left his Brookline palace the latter part of last week, leaving word with his friends that he would soon be settled in his new home in the capital city. If all goes well the Andersons will give a house warming the latter part of the Winter which will be one of the events of the season.

The house is pronounced a wonder by all who have seen the plans. It is a large mansion on K street, and is built entirely of marble. The interior is divided into sections. One for guests, another for entertaining, another for the private use of guests and still another for the family. Each people who go to Washington will be sure to receive a royal welcome when the doors are opened, for there are to be hospitable entertainments and have many visits from the city.

J. Pierpont Morgan and the Reggie Vanderbilts are to have exhibits at the dog show in Mechanics Hall, February 21, 22, 23 and 24. Mr. Morgan is to exhibit his Crowd of Scotch collies, which are said to be the finest in the country, and which has won many blue ribbons.

Those who attend will be treated to a rare sight in connection with the Vanderbilt exhibits, for they are to personally show their dogs in the ring. Their entire will be French bulls and Reggie will exhibit the first two, being Mrs. Vanderbilt's pets and the latter Mr. Vanderbilt's. So much is greatly interested in the show this year and a number of blooded dogs from Back Bay homes and kennels will be exhibited.

* * *

Mrs. Herbert Wells, who is occupying a house on Beacon street this Winter with her children, has just purchased an estate at Sandwich, N. H., for a Summer home. It is the same place that the Grover Cleveland occupied last Summer and which was enlarged for their special benefit. Mrs. Wells plans to remain in the house until some additional improvements are made, particularly the addition of a bowling alley, that section of the country. She will take possession early in the spring and the improvements that she has planned will not be completed much before next Fall.

* * *

The William Pattens, who have been at Weston for the past year, have moved into town and are now occupying the Nathaniel Thayer house on Commonwealth avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Thayer are in Europe, having sailed two weeks ago, and their trip will occupy the greater part of six months. Mrs. Thayer was Anna Dewey, is an addition to the Boston matrons, although, owing to mourning, she will do no entertaining and will go out but little.

* * *

This week is to see an exodus of Boston society people for abroad. The George Lees and the Washington D. Thomases will Wednesday for Europe. To-morrow Mrs. Elwin D. Jordan and her niece, Miss Helen Dunham, leave to join Miss Dorothy Jordan, who is in Paris, studying. Later the Joe Peters party will be further increased by the addition of Mr. Jordan and Robert Jordan.

* * *

Mrs. James Jackson of Clarendon street is entertaining her son in law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Hallowell, who have come in from Medford for the remainder of the Winter. Later the Hallowell family will be still further enlarged by an added daughter, Mrs. George C. Lee, Jr., Mr. Lee and their children, who at present are with Mr. Lee's parents on Beacon street.

POISON FOUND IN HOCH'S ROOM

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—A white powder, declared by the police to be poison, and now in process of chemical analysis, was found in the room once occupied by Johann Hoch, the self confessed bigamist of Chicago, in the house of Mrs. Catherine Kunneke, at No. 540 West Forty-second street, according to a statement made by Mrs. Kunneke to-day.

The powder was found by Detective Sergeant Foye of headquarters, who searched the room on Friday last. It was contained in a glass tube about six inches long, one end of which was closed by a cork, which evidently used for ejecting the substance.

Mrs. Kunneke says that Foye opened her the powder and afterward told her that it was poison.

"I cannot say anything about it," said Foye to-day when asked about the poison. "The matter is in the hands of the police. I have been told to say nothing because this is a case for the Chicago police."

RISEGARI'S BOSTON DEBUT

Silvio Risegari, the young Italian pianist, who is to make his first public appearance in Boston February 16, in Jordan Hall, conservatory of Music, is more identified with the city than most of the foreign musicians, for he attended the Boston public schools in his boyhood. On this account his debut in this city is anticipated with more than usual interest.

TUMORS CONQUERED

SERIOUS OPERATIONS AVOIDED

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the Case of Mrs. Fannie D. Fox.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy, Tumor.

The growth of a tumor is so sly that frequently its presence is not suspected until it is far advanced.

Mrs. Fannie D. Fox

So-called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages, or the presence of danger may be made manifest by profuse menstruation, accompanied by unusual pain, from the ovaries down the groin and thighs.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation; secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound at one pound right away and begin its use.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., will give you her advice free of charge if you will write her about yourself. Your letter will be seen by women only.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I take the liberty to congratulate you on the success I have had with your wonderful medicine. Eighteen months ago my mother-in-law died. Shortly after I felt badly but I submitted to a thorough examination by a physician and was told that I had a tumor on the uterus and would have to undergo an operation.

"Soon after I read one of your advertisements and decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. After trying five bottles as directed the tumor is entirely gone. I have been examined by a physician and he says I have no signs of a tumor now. It has also brought my monthly periods around once more, and I am entirely well."—Fannie D. Fox, 2 Chestnut Street, Bradford, Pa.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

A letter from Governor Douglas was read at the Central Labor Union meeting acknowledging receipt of the communication sent him by the union concerning the management of prisons and penal institutions.

At the suggestion of Woodworkers' Union No. 24, a resolution was passed requesting the Legislature, in granting bids for furnishing public buildings with desks, tables and bookcases, to see that the Wood workers' Union rules were not infringed upon. The following committee was appointed to further the matter: Frank K. Foster, Typographical Union No. 13, and John T. Cushman and Fred J. Kneeland of Painters' Union No. 11.

Secretary Abrahams reported the receipt of the following donations for the Fall River strike workers: Teamsters' Union No. 68, $30.00; Pattern Makers' Association, 88; Italian Excavators' Union, 82.

Credentials were received from these organizations: Brewery Workers' Union No. 278, Soapers and Direct Cooking Employees' No. 110, Brassworkers' No. 55, Bindery No. 66, Stereotypers' Firemen No. 255, Carpenters' No. 77, Coal Handlers' No. 6023, Stereotypers' No. 11, Teamsters' No. 68, Boston Water Department Employees' No. 6250, Carpenters' No. 459 and Theatrical Stage Employes' No. 11.

LONGSHOREMEN'S UNION.

One big local union is to take in all the longshoremen employed on the wharves in Boston. It is to be formed under a charter from the Knights of Labor, but only the men may present a solid front when they demand an increase in pay or a cut in wages. It is claimed that the new local will not feel the increase in twenty years.

At the meeting of Coastwise Longshoremen's Assembly, No. 1,062, delegations were received from the Philadelphia & Reading Company docks, from the Baltimore & Norfolk steamship line and the Merchants & Miners'.

At present there are two unions of longshoremen, both American Federation of Labor organizations, but as the deep water freight handlers and the deep water longshoremen are members of No. 6, of 2, ladies it was deemed better to organize one union under the same head.

MACHINISTS MEET HERE.

The biennial convention of the International Association of Machinists will be opened in this city September 11, and will probably be held in Faneuil Hall, the third week.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, FEBRUARY 6, 1905.

MR. HEARST DOES NOT WANT TO BE MAYOR

He Never Saw Governor Odell—a Fact Which He Greatly Regrets.

Mr. Pulitzer, who owns the New York World, announces that he has postponed the opening of his Columbia College of Journalism until after his death.

Says the Talmud: What you give in health is gold, what you give in sickness is silver, what you give after death is lead.

This does not apply to MR. PULITZER. For he has actually given one million already and will give more, depriving himself of the capital and interest during his lifetime. He proposes to OPEN his College of Journalism only AFTER his death.

May the opening day of the college be long postponed. We are glad to announce from personal and exact knowledge that the opening is quite sure to be postponed for fifty years at least. Mr. Pulitzer, having learned the sick man's lesson, knows enough to take care of himself. He will continue to live and work years after stronger, younger men shall have passed along. That's a good thing, for Mr. Pulitzer was a really useful and radical man before he got rich—and he is useful to-day in a different way. He deserves to live—and the world can wait for a school of journalism.

What we want to suggest to Mr. Pulitzer is this:

Let him devote his remaining fifty years of life to cultivating accuracy in his own newspaper office.

Let him teach his young men, for instance, that it pays to tell the truth always—even about other editors—even about competitors.

This suggestion is called up by Mr. Pulitzer's two-column article published on Friday last about Mr. Hearst—editor of this newspaper—Governor Odell, the Mayoralty, etc.

The two columns of inaccuracy—boiled down to few words—relate in substance this:

Mr. Hearst and Governor Odell have had various conferences, with a view to control of New York City politics, and incidentally of making Mr. Hearst Mayor of New York in place of McClellan.

These conferences preceded and followed Governor Odell's vetoing of the Remsen gas steal, etc., etc.

The truth is that Mr. Hearst and Governor Odell have never in their lives seen each other or spoken to each other. This fact Mr. Hearst regrets. He will take gladly the first opportunity of making Governor Odell's personal acquaintance, to thank him in person—as he has thanked him on behalf of readers, in his newspapers, for vetoing the Remsen gas steal, signed by New York's gas Mayor, and for defeating the attempts to destroy the wise tenement house laws.

Perhaps the fact of Mr. Hearst's having given conspicuous public praise to a man and REPUBLICAN whom he had never seen and who had never SEEN him, may appear a little odd to the old school of journalism.

Another fact, should Mr. Pulitzer care to publish it, is this:

Mr. Hearst does not want to be Mayor of New York, and he would not consent to be nominated or elected Mayor by any party or any combination of parties. The Mayor of New York holds an important office. Any man might be proud to find reposed in him the confidence of the nation's greatest city—especially after the way in which that confidence has been recently abused.

But Mr. Hearst has neither the desire nor the time to act as Mayor.

A man publishing newspapers in New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles, is fairly well occupied with public questions. The readers of Mr. Hearst's newspapers exceed very greatly in number the TOTAL POPULATION OF GREATER NEW YORK, women, children and careless editors included.

The Hearst newspapers are fighting municipal corruption in all the cities where they are published.

Mayor McClellan's present gang of gas thieves is but one of the gas thief gangs that the Hearst newspapers deal with. We are smoking out one gang in Boston just now—and rather successfully. We have had fights, law suits and long-drawn-out attempts to make the Chicago gas thieves decent—we have had some success there and hope for more.

A man with municipal fights on his hands in five big American cities is a little too busy to be elected Mayor of any one city supposing that he COULD be elected.

Mr. Hearst wants to see an honest man Mayor of New York. He will do what he can to bring that about—by appealing to the readers that believe in his sincerity.

He believes that it should be impossible for McClellan—who signed the Remsen gas steal, and agreed to a contract that he himself was forced by the NEW YORK AMERICAN to denounce later as extortionate—to have a chance to sell out New York's voters.

The Hearst newspapers, MORNING, EVENING and GERMAN, will do what they can from now until the next election day to keep New York City from a second dose of the little "GAS Mayor."

In this work we shall collaborate gladly with Governor Odell—if he has an honest man to oppose McClellan—with the Citizens' Union, and with all intelligent citizens. It would be difficult, perhaps, impossible, to select a man that we should NOT support as against McClellan, for it would be quite impossible to find ANY MAN equalling McClellan as an unblushing and self-confessed tool of CORRUPTIONISTS.

Mr. Hearst—the World contrary notwithstanding — HAS NEVER SUGGESTED A CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR to Mr. Odell or anybody else. The Hearst newspapers simply hope that a good man will be elected.

That is the limit of Mr. Hearst's interest and influence in the Mayoralty question. He owes a great deal to the people of New York City. Their confidence and support have given him influence and success.

He proposes to deserve public confidence—therefore he will oppose public confidence men—including the Gas Trust Mayor.

Two Meetings of the Week Just Passed

By Julia Ward Howe

WRITTEN EXPRESSLY FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN.

On the evening of Tuesday, January 31st, occurred a memorable meeting in Lorimer Hall, Tremont Temple. It had been called by the Russian Circle of Boston, to express sympathy with recent efforts on the part of the Russian people to obtain a government befitting our age of light and instruction, an age in which the rule of fear and force has been judged and condemned as a method rendered obsolete by the progress of events.

This sympathy, voiced mostly by Americans, was evidently deep and sincere. Those who spoke surely believed that "God has made of one blood all the nations of the earth."

In this view, the sufferings of the oppressed Russian people concern us nearly. Their dwarfed and mutilated manhood appeals to us.

We feel ourselves wronged in the ordinances which debar so large a portion of our race from the foremost conditions of human progress and well being. Our very heart groans with those of the victims who pine in Siberian mines and prisons, those hungry villages in which beggary becomes respectable because man must live by bread, even if not by bread alone—their famine disturbs the plenty of our feasts.

There is the earth, full of nourishing power. There is the strong arm, ready for its culture. There also is the tax gatherer, commissioned to divert the wealth of the harvest into the coffers of a merciless and insatiate bureaucracy.

There are the colleges and the young men and women craving instruction, but at their doors the mandate of the government intervenes, declaring who shall and who shall not enter therein, proclaiming above all that free thought and free speech are contraband in Russian education.

When the summons to this meeting reached me, I could not prepare an address suited to a Boston audience. I could only lift up my heart in prayer to the supreme power that rules the universe, and cry:

"Oh, God! Help the Russian people to achieve a people's rights, and in place of carrying their own enslavement to other nations, let them become the centre of a light which shall illuminate the dark places of the earth!"

But freedom, to be maintained, must be fought for everywhere. An effort in its behalf was made on Thursday last, February 2d, at the State House, when, before a committee of the Legislature, the friends of woman suffrage petitioned for a constitutional amendment striking the word "male" from the statute of the franchise.

The petitioners occupied one side of the large room, the remonstrants the other. Most of those who took part in the proceedings were seated at a long table. A sweet-faced young woman, Miss Amy Acton, sat at one end of this table. Beside her appeared two lawyers retained in behalf of the remonstrants.

The arguments in favor of the petition were, as ever, simple and earnest, resting upon principles of justice as well as upon considerations of expediency. They were presented by persons of honorable record and standing.

The remonstrants assumed from the start that the question of woman suffrage was one, not of right, but of expediency.

Their plea was, that as eleven thousand women had signed the remonstrance, it was not to be supposed that any demand for suffrage expressed the wishes of the women of Massachusetts. The irrelevancy of the statements advanced in support of this position is painful to those who are pledged to uphold the general capacity and intelligence of the sex.

Nothing deserving to be called an argument was presented by the remonstrants. On the ground that eleven thousand women had been induced to sign their document, they pleaded, illogically enough, that suffrage should be denied to the women who know its importance and feel its need.

One lady, in particular, dwelt much upon her opposition to the writings of Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman regarding domestic life and the care of the children. This did not seem to bear very directly upon this question of suffrage.

We must hope that the animus of the remonstrants was not expressed in the extraordinary harangue delivered on their account by Mr. Charles Saunders.

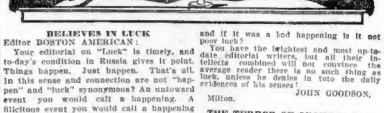
He surely overstepped his ground when, not content with informing the petitioners that their errand was ridiculous, that they had behind them no cause, nor party, nor raison d'etre, he proceeded to lay all the evils and follies of society at the door of the sex in general.

From the disagreements of the School Committee to the extravagances of Spiritualism, he regarded women as the promoters, if not originators, of every social mistake and mischief.

This diatribe ended, Miss Alice Blackwell in rebuttal calmly took up his assertions one by one and showed them to be either misstated or misconstrued. To the discourteous, not to say insolent, tone of his disparagement of the sex, she did not allude, nor was it necessary to do so.

One naturally asks whether this is the sort of male representation which the remonstrants of Massachusetts recommend. JULIA WARD HOWE.

Little Editorials from the People



BELIEVES IN LUCK

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Your editorial on "Luck" is timely, and to-day's condition in Russia gives it point. Things happen. Just happen. That's all. In this sense and connection are not "happen" and "luck" synonymous? An untoward event you would call a happening. A felicitous event you would call a happening also. Well, you'll find many agreeing with you, only instead of the word "happen" they'd use the word "luck." Is there any essential difference in the application of those two words? And if not, then where is coming the logic of your editorial?

Japan is fighting Russia. Japan is all known rules Russia should whip Japan and in time no doubt would do so. At an inopportune moment for Russia comes an internal uprising which may operate to Russia's defeat on the field of battle and at home.

It happened so. Just happened that way. That's all. Was it a good happening for Russia or otherwise? Was it a good happening for Japan or otherwise? If it was a good happening is it not good luck? and if it was a bad happening is it not poor luck?

You have the brightest and most up-to-date editorial writers, but all their intelligence combined will not convince the average reader there is no such thing as luck, unless he denies in toto the daily incidents of his senses.

JOHN GOODSON.

THE TERROR OF GROWING OLD

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The article on "Women's Dread of Growing Old," by Dorothy Dix, arouses the suspicion that she does not see the higher class that better represents the race. This dread—not so much of age as of its deformities and infirmities—does not seem confined to women. It is said of Senator Hoar that in his last illness he expressed the wish to regain health and power to work, but added: "I don't want to live to be the old man to drive the cows home at night and to go down to the store for the paper, and sit around."

I once heard a man declare that every man ought to die at fifty, in the height of his powers, and thus escape the anguish of being "laid on the shelf."

It is true that age is a "horror," a "spectre" to the majority of men and women. Women may feel it more generally, more tragically. Too many women realize—as Miss Dix delicately expresses it—that "a man takes his last look at his wife at the altar"; though there are those who look and love to the end and save our ideals.

Also a woman is supposed to be "as old as she looks," and if, as with Job, she finds "the thing she feared has come upon her," she is at a disadvantage in every walk of life, unless unusually keen and gifted. But she is not alone in this disadvantage. How about the recent decision of certain railroad companies not to employ men over thirty-five? What a blight on the species! How about the men, who, in the clutch of the spectre, but still needing to work, proceed to dye their hair and apply for positions at the time of day when the light is most favorable to their youthful faces.

It has been usual for a woman to "fold her hands and trot demurely down to the grave." That time has passed. But all this "burning, perennial interest" in "how to keep young" is not a matter to be deplored, but rather the "cry of the human," the demand that implies supply—the hopeful sign of life that drives to evolution.

It surely is a higher goal to intelligently control the forces that we now unconsciously—but still actually—control. The body is not the life, as the telephone is not the voice.

Till that goal is in sight of all, even the "frenzied" efforts, the limelight of persecution, the martyrdom of Miss Dix's "cheerful grandmamma," the despair of those who struggle with deforming fat, who love beauty and mourn its lack in their own bodies, are all signs of progress of the "divine urge of creation."

Of course there is a finer grace that often illuminates mountains of flesh and other deformities, but "a sane mind in a sane body" is what we instinctively and rightly crave, and toward which evolution tends.

MARGARET G. POLK.
